Big Tank Battle Raging In Egypt

BRIEF PRESENTED

Permanent Farm Debt Relief Measures For West Urged At Ottawa

OTTAWA, July 16.—(CP)—A permanent code of debt legislation, directed at relief of farmers in western Canada, was urged on the government yesterday by a prairie provinces delegation headed by the provincial premiers of Alberta, Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

A brief, read to Prime Minister Mackenzie King and a group of cabinet ministers by Premier John Bracken of Manitoba, said new legislation was required to replace provincial enactments declared ultra vires in decisions which placed the authority for such legislation on the Dominion government.

Premier William Patterson of Saskatchewan and Premier William Aberhart of Alberta, with a number of their cabinet ministers, were also members of the delegation.

Included in the brief was a resolution passed at a conference in Saskatoon June 29 and 30 attended by representatives of the three governments and of 12 prairie farm organizations.

URGE TRIBUNAL

The conference recommended establishment of a tribunal or tribunals to:

1—Write down the principal of farm debts, secured and unsecured.

2—Reduce the interest rate on farm debts, secured and unsecured.

3—Alter the terms of payment of farm debts, secured and unsecured.

4—Review and revise its own decisions in the light of subsequent events.

5—Extend to individuals in any particular year or circumstance the protection of provisions of the legislation available to any debtor.

6—Stay proceedings arising on liens or securities after an adjustment had been made.

7—Make remedies available with respect to any farm debts regardless of the time at which they were incurred.

The brief said the Saskatoon conference was agreed that "private debt is still one of the most serious problems in the western economy, and that in the interest of the western farmer, legislative action is necessary."

It added that "in the last 10 years the yearly income during many years has been less than one-third the average income of 1926 to 1929 and it still remains $100,000,000 lower than in any year from 1926 to 1929."

VALUES DECLINE

The value of farm land and buildings had declined steadily from $2,168,000,000 in 1926 to $1,227,000,000 in 1941 and in no year had the value of buildings risen as

South Hungary Revolt Revealed As Trial Opens

By JOHN A. PARRIS

LONDON, July 16.—(BUP)—The German Trans-Ocean agency revealed today that a revolt swept southern Hungary late last January and that the trial of those considered responsible—apparently public officials—was now in progress.

A Trans-Ocean dispatch from Budapest, broadcast by the German radio and recorded by British United Press, quoted the Hungarian premier, Von Kallay, as saying that 2,550 Serbs, whom he blamed for the "open attack," were killed. Nothing was said of losses suffered by Hungarian gendarmes and infantry who met the insurgents "in open battle" between the Danube and Theiss rivers.

Paris

Von Kallay told the Hungarian house of deputies yesterday that the revolt began when Serbian partisans attacked Hungarian gendarmes and border guards, killing seven in one day.

Von Kallay said the "same forces who put fire to the Balkans" were at the bottom of the trouble. Gestapo agents, never sure that a patriot's bomb or bullet would not kill them at the next moment, were striving to end insurrection in two Balkan nations—Yugoslavia and Czecho-Slovakia.

SEIZE CZECH BISHOP

Czech circles in London learned that the Gestapo had seized the orthodox Czech bishop for Bohemia-Moravia, Dr. Gorasd, and his two assistants and were going to try them for harboring the slayers of Reinhard (The Hangman) Heydrich, No. 2 chief of the Gestapo.

The British Broadcasting Company reported that the Italians, engaged in a full-fledged and costly war with Gen. Draja Mikhailovitch's Yugoslav guerillas, had burned six villages and shot 50 persons in an attempt to discourage the patriots. More villages were said to have been burned and all their male inhabitants arrested.

A Yugoslav spokesman in London said that two more Italian officers had been killed by patriots —Maj. Francesco Fazzinati and Brig. Gen. Valento. The Italians arrested Stanislav Vartol, tried him for both killings, and executed him.

Ready For Raids

OTTAWA, July 16.—(CP)—The parliament buildings are prepared to meet an air raid any time, Smith bags of sand, weighing 10 to 12 pounds each, have been placed at alcoves of halls throughout the building.

NAZIS NOT WEAKENED IN EUROPE

Second Front Is Unlikely In 1942

Stalingrad Danger Grows As Nazis Drive Deeper

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, July 16.—(AP)—Two German salients were driven within 175 miles of Stalingrad on the Volga today while at Voronezh Red army counter-attacks were said to have smashed a Nazi encirclement arm north of the city and repelled Axis advance forces from its outlying streets.

The deepest Axis penetrations into the Big Bend of the Don river, where it curves close to the Volga, were at German-won Boguchar, 130 miles southeast of Voronezh, and southeast of Millerovo where the new Russian stand presumably is along the Kalitva river, 125 miles northeast of Rostov.

The danger to Stalingrad, guardian of the lower Volga, and Rostov, rail gate to the Caucasus, grew hourly with a large part of the important Don river basin in the hands of the invaders.

CRITICAL SITUATION

Russian dispatches said the most critical situation of the war had developed there in the vast treeless steppes—a plain barren of natural obstacles and perfect for tank operations.

There were indications the fierce upsurge of fighting was spreading over more hundreds of miles of the battlefront. Dispatches from the Bryansk area, 220 miles southwest of Moscow and 220 miles northwest of Voronezh, said a "more serious struggle" was impending.

No decisive operations there at the juncture of the old battle line and the new Axis bulge to the southward were given. It was the first word from the Bryansk sector in 10 days.

At Voronezh, key to the German twin thrusts meeting 40 miles to the Volga and the way south into the Caucasus, German troops were hurling tank reinforcements across the Don into the battle area and rushing up anti-tank batteries to meet the Red army's armoured counter assaults.

EAST OF REMEY

Dispatches from the battlefront northeast of Moscow for the first time mentioned fighting east of Rzhev, which is 130 miles from the Soviet capital. Operations in that area earlier had been described as southwest of the city.

Forces of German automatic rifle-men were said to have wedged into Russian positions but were reported repulsed after a two-hour battle.

The dispatches said German pressure continued, but was not on the scale of an offensive.

Hungarian troops heavily supported by tanks struck at the junction of the Don and Voronezh rivers southwest of Voronezh, but the Russians were reported still holding the city.

A German vanguard entered one

Police Guards Battle Crowds Ortiz Funeral

BUENOS AIRES, July 16.—(AP)—Strong police guards fought and repulsed citizens who sought to join the funeral corteige of former president Roberto Ortiz in front of Buenos Aires Cathedral today, but the crowd braved a reinforced guard on occasion into a fervent pro-Democratic demonstration.

As the procession formed and the coffin was placed on a gun carriage, about 500 persons surged forward with the evident intention of joining the procession for the man whose death removed one of the hopes of democratic forces in this country.

Police repelled them in a series of fist fights, and the procession got under way while the crowd followed, shouting, "Ortiz", and "Viva la Democracia."

Ortiz died yesterday, three weeks after he had resigned the presidency because of ill health, leaving office without having realized his ambition of assuring Argentina's allegiance to democratic ideals.

The crowd today, growing steadily as the funeral cortege moved along the streets, cheered for democracy and shouted, "We loved him," and "they killed him."

News that Marshal Erwin Rommel's army in Egypt has been reinforced from Crete is coupled with reports from Istanbul that 50,000 German and Italian troops, including three motorized divisions, have been concentrated on that Mediterranean island.

This may presage a renewed Axis drive for the Middle East, timed to coincide with the German smash toward the Caucasus in the Don river region.

Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck has not been able to take the initiative in Egypt and his operations, which

Parts Of Drew Letter Printed In East Press

By B. T. RICHARDSON
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, July 16.—Parts of the letter written by George A. Drew, Ontario Conservative leader, in which he took 32 pages to outline his contention that the Duff inquiry into the Hong Kong expedition presented the public with an unjust and unwarranted impression, have been published despite an official ruling from the government, based on legal opinion, that the Drew letter is a violation of the order of secrecy imposed upon Drew and other participants in the Hong Kong inquiry.

The Montreal Gazette has a lengthy editorial on the subject today. Its conviction is that Col. Drew's letter was based on the Ontario Conservative's leader's firm belief that the difficulties that arose in the dispatch of the Hong Kong expedition were the result of the shocking inefficiency of the department of national defence and the headquarters staff. Col. Drew believes that there is incompetence, and he therefore asks if these men, having, in his opinion, proved themselves incapable of handling a simple military operation involving perhaps hundreds of thousands of men, belonging to different military services with a large and intricate mass of weapons and equipment.

ASKS IT BE TABLED

The Toronto Globe and Mail, unlike its Montreal counterpart, refrains from quoting the Drew letter but in a front page editorial calls

Vatican May Soon Reveal Plans For Negotiated Peace

VICHY, July 16—(BUP)—The Vatican soon is expected to reveal its suggestions for a negotiated peace, Pope Pius, it is said, might publish it during the latter part of August if the situation is "propitious.

Diplomatic circles say a peace encyclical is now being drawn up in which the Pope reportedly will discuss post-war planning, including continuation of the present governments in France, Portugal, Spain and Italy.

Nazi Prisoners Escape In East

OTTAWA, July 16.—(CP)—Royal Canadian Mounted Police announced today the escape of a German merchant seaman from a military hospital at Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Que.—the second break from internment in eastern Canada within the past 24 hours.

The seaman was identified as Herman Naiwald, 23. Police said Naiwald, who had been undergoing medical treatment in hospital, had escaped between 3 a.m. and 6 a.m. this morning.

An extensive search has been started in the district around Ste. Anne de Bellevue.

Meanwhile, authorities said there had been no developments in the search for Martin Bodenstein, 34-year-old internee, who escaped yesterday afternoon from the internment camp at Petawawa, Ont.

Bodenstein, whose nationality was not announced, was formerly held at a camp in western Canada.

By LEON KAY

CAIRO, July 16.—(BUP)—A heavy tank battle raged along the central sector of the Egyptian desert front east of El Alamein all day today, with the outcome still in doubt.

The tank engagement followed a successful British attack and an Axis counter-threat on the central sector and a German drive that recaptured the railroad station at Tel El Eisa, on the northern coastal sector.

At last reports the British were still holding their main positions overlooking Tel El Eisa, and their strongest new positions on the central sector, where the enemy counter-attacks had gained a foothold on a strategic ridge.

YANKS RAID BENGASI

Meanwhile, United States heavy bombers had started big fires in a raid on the Axis supply base at Bengasi. R.A.F. fighter-bombers hammered the enemy front, including a strongly-guarded mobile headquarters detachment which was set ablaze by hits and near-misses. Officials said the British attacks in headquarters units were continuing in hope of getting Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel.

Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck's eighth army advanced in the early hours of yesterday on the central sector, laying south of El Alamein and the Hill of Jesus.

They fought their way to all objectives, stormed them and secured their positions at the western end of a ridge which dominates the whole area.

PRISONERS TAKEN

German and Italian prisoners were taken in the attack and were streaming through the Imperial lines but the British command was unable to give the total because they had not been counted.

The German made a determined counter-attack on the ridge yesterday afternoon, using tanks to support their infantry, but were repulsed without gain.

Gray's Defeat Feature Upset Amateur Golf

Defeat of Glen Gray by Norman Lee by a two and one margin was the sole upset of Thursday morning's play in the first round of the championship flight of the Alberta Amateur at Mayfair Golf and Country club.

Gray, the Alberta junior champion, couldn't match the steady play of his competitor. Lee was definitely "on" and had the pressure on young Gray right from the start.

Henry Martell, defending champion, got the morning off when his opponent, Jack Wright, defaulted.

All others among the favored circle came through with victories. Johnny Richardson of Calgary defeated D. Milne of Edmonton six and five. Danny Podersky eliminated Wilfred Rigby, Edmonton, two, W. Broadfoot stopped N. Lacey four and three. Whit Matthews defeated R. McComb four and two and Kemp Richardson won over D. Jones six and four.

Other first round results in the championship flight on Thursday morning were: V. Ockenden def. E. S. Keith on the 19th; R. Gallway def. Stan Howard on the 18th; V. Mohs def. M. Stewart three and two; Jack Starky def. Eddie McFadyen six and three; Bill Tait def. Bill Small five and three; F. Zabock, Calgary, def. W. Gostick on the 19th.

Japanese At Crossroads In Campaign To Conquer Asia, Chinese Believe

What is the meaning of the current lull in the Far Eastern war? Where will Japan attempt to strike next or will the Allies beat Tokyo to the punch? The following dispatch by the British United Press southwest of Chungking, but gives some of the answers from the viewpoint of military authorities who have at their disposal complete reports of the Chinese intelligence service.—EDITOR.

By ROBERT P. MARTIN

CHUNGKING, July 16.—(BUP)—Japan is at a crossroads in her campaign to conquer Asia and Chinese authorities believe that Tokyo may be forced to adopt a wait-and-see attitude pending decisive developments in Europe—especially in the battle of Russia.

There have been frequent unexpected moves by the Japanese in the year that it covered the China war at Shanghai and since I escaped from Japanese occupied territory to Chungking last winter, but a poll of informed sources today found attention centred on the possibility of a blow by Tokyo against the Soviet Union rather than in the south.

Authorities believe that, barring some unexpected development, the best outlook for the next phase of warfare is as follows:

1—An invasion of Australia is out for the present. The Coral Sea and Midway defeats, plus the growing strength of Allied forces in Australia make that too costly a prize to bid for now.

2—Japan will not attempt an immediate invasion of India. Anglo-American serial protection is strong there and roads and other communications are poor so the Japanese may prefer to permit Indian

PLAN PUNISHMENT FOR AGGRESSOR

Allies To "De-Nazify" Beaten Germany After War

10 Years Believed Needed To Crush Ideals Based On Philosophy Of Hitlerism

This is the second of a series by Douglas Amaron, Canadian Press London parliamentary correspondent, on Britain's preparations for her post-war development. The problem of defeated Germany is discussed here.—EDITOR.

By DOUGLAS AMARON

LONDON, July 16.—(CP)—How to deal with a conquered Germany is in the forefront of Britain's post-war problems. The Atlantic charter and the more recent Russian-British 20-year treaty make it clear that Germany is to be disarmed immediately and rendered incapable of further aggression or violation of peace.

It is clear, too, that the authors of the massacres in Poland, the men who slaughtered countless hostages in Czecho-Slovakia, France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Norway and every other occupied country must be punished.

But Germany is a nation of 80,000,000 people and a place must be kept for her in the future Europe. She must have access to the trade and raw materials of the world and admitted to any international economic setup that is framed.

GUILT OF PEOPLE

On these points there is little controversy. But difficult is the decision about the guilt of the German people as a whole and here there are two schools of thought, one which groups the Germans with their leaders and the other which separates the people from the Nazi regime.

All Germans are not Nazis and many who are became so only after Hitler resorted to force to impose his precepts, but it has been pointed out many times that a country gets the government it deserves and that the Germans have always lived as a unit, accepting authority whether exercised by Bismarck, the Kaiser or Hitler.

For this reason, the school which groups the German race with its leaders contends that as Germany is fighting the war as a unit it must pay the price as a unit.

The spectator, discussing this aspect of post-war treatment of Germany, said that, "whatever the price it will not be comparable with the scale of the crimes committed in the German people's name."

MAKE RESTITUTION

"There can be no reparations in the sense in which reparations were talked of and proved barren illusion after the last war," the weekly periodical stated. "But at least a large measure of restitution is possible, and it cannot be dispensed with."

Lord Maughem, former Lord Chancellor, suggested a restitution in kind" to follow the German defeat.

"The pictures, the works of art, the libraries, the artistic instruments must be returned, or the equivalent must be restored to the lands which have been despoiled," he wrote in the Sunday Times. "All things of any description which have been deliberately destroyed must have compensation in kind made for them."

"Stocks of materials which have been looted must also be made good, so far as such stocks can be found. This does not mean revenge, nor is it retribution based on hatred; it is the simplest and most obvious form of justice."

On the side of reconstruction is the question of dealing with the German race as a whole. It has been alleged that it will take 10 years to de-Nazify the young Nazis, for the education of the present generation of Germans has been passed on the philosophy of Hitlerism.

NO SOLUTION

So far no satisfactory solution to this problem of "de-Nazification" has been found. Lord Addison was questioned in the House of Lords when he proposed long-term control over Germany and German education but how this control is to be imposed is another matter.

Quoting again from the spectator: "Germany quite certainly cannot be converted from the outside. . . . It is the best of her own people who must change themselves, with that if it is to be achieved at all."

Wind, Hail Blast Saskatoon Area

SASKATOON, July 16.—(CP)—A violent wind, rain and hail storm which swept northern Saskatchewan districts last week damaged thousands of acres of wheatlands, disrupted telephone and power services, unroofed houses and wrecked farm machinery.

The storm took heavy toll in the districts surrounding Vanscoy, 15 miles south of here, and at Conquest, 40 miles southwest of Saskatoon. Saskatoon escaped with a thunder shower.

In the Vanscoy district crop losses were from 75 to 100 per cent, while at Conquest a 30-minute storm damaged thousands of acres of wheat, crop in a strip roughly four miles wide. Several farmers lost all their crop.

In the town of Battleford roofs were blown from a number of homes, the interiors being damaged by the heavy downpour of rain.

Ottawa Will Give Financial Grant For Fish Vessels

OTTAWA, July 16.—(CP)—Fisheries Minister Michaud announced last night the government will give financial assistance toward construction of Atlantic coast fishing vessels of the dragger type or conversion of suitable vessels for use as draggers "so that the reduced fisheries manpower may have added effectiveness and production of urgently-needed foods be increased." The department now is working out details of the plan, the minister said, and an announcement will be made in a few days. A scheme for assisting fishing vessel construction on the Pacific coast already is being carried out.

Ottawa Given Prairie Brief On Farm Debts

great as in the year immediately preceding.

Even more serious was the decline in actual production values arising from the depression which in many cases had made it impossible for farmers to keep agricultural practices such as crop rotation, up to a normal standard.

"It should be made clear that while the higher farm income that has prevailed since 1939 may have eased the pressure of farm debt somewhat, it has not solved the problem," the brief continued. "It was the conviction of the organizations present at Saskatoon that the general level of farm debt has not been materially reduced."

Debt adjustments had been part of the administrative functions of the prairie government for from 10 to 18 years and during that time no injustice had been done creditors.

"In the most critical period of the world depression, the work of the provincial boards assisted after 1935 by that of the boards of review, served in no small measure to preserve order and to prevent much more serious discontent than would otherwise have prevailed," the brief said.

NO CRITICISM

"I am sure we do not need to say western Canada is loyally behind Canada's war effort, and what we now say is spoken in no spirit of criticism, but with a complete realization of the tasks confronting the Dominion government.

"But it has been deemed necessary by your government to adopt measures of crop acreage reduction, and as well may be expected, of national service have seriously reduced the manpower formerly available for farm work.

"Wages have been considerably increased, and so has the cost of living on the farm. Fortunately, the demand for livestock products during the past two years has served, along with governmental bonuses, to offset some of these increased costs.

"What may happen when the war is over, if markets for grain still remain restricted, must surely be cause for great anxiety. And this anxiety will be intensified by the provision of the recent international wheat agreement which provides that, for a period of two years after the conclusion of the war, Canada's annual wheat shall not exceed 275,000,000 bushels per year."

MANY HAZARDS

The west was peculiarly susceptible to such hazards as hail, frost, drought and grasshoppers and is main product, wheat, sold at fluctuating levels.

"For these reasons we submit that a satisfactory and permanent code of debt legislation is necessary for western Canada to replace the legislative provisions that have been declared ultra vires by the court," the brief said. "These decisions have established that the necessary legislative authority for such a code rests with the dominion government and not with the provinces."

The supreme court of Canada had held that a provincial legislature could not appoint a board to stay or to postpone proceedings relating to a debt represented by a promissory note or bearing interest. The board was also prohibited from acting as an intermediary between creditor and debtor in the adjustment or settlement of their debts, even on a voluntary basis.

"If these two decisions are sustained the powers of the provinces are so limited and circumscribed as to be practically useless in the settlements of the farmer's debt problem," the brief said. "It is abundantly clear that the only body capable of adequately dealing with the matter, constitutionally, is the dominion parliament."

The Bankruptcy act was not suitable for the adjustment of farm debts and the Farmers' Creditors' Arrangement act had severe weaknesses and was conceived as a solution to a temporary problem, the brief said.

MOST OF DELEGATES LEAVE FOR HOME

OTTAWA, July 16.—(CP)—The bulk of a delegation headed by the premiers of the three prairie provinces left for home today after submitting to the Dominion government a brief urging a "satisfactory and permanent code" of debt legislation for western Canada.

Some of the delegation members remained here to conduct other business.

U.S. Army To Have Norse Battalion

WASHINGTON, July 16—(AP)—War Secretary Henry Stimson announced today that a battalion of Norwegian soldiers, including citizens of Norway living in the United States and Americans who speak Norwegian, will be organized at an unset date at Camp Ripley, Minn., to serve with the army's ground forces.

Stimson noted that the battalion of Norwegian nationals would demonstrate to the Norwegian people all over the world the determination of the United States to restore their government to its rightful sovereignty."

Gestapo Continues Arrest Hundreds In Heydrich Case

LONDON, July 16.—(CP)—A Czech government spokesman said today the Gestapo is continuing to arrest hundreds of persons in Bohemia and Moravia in its purge resulting from the slaying of Reinhard Heydrich. He said while he had no knowledge of a Moscow radio report that 10,000 Czechs were executed in one month, "the Nazis have executed many more than the 1,357 they have announced but we do not know the exact figure."

Commandos' Trainer Shows U.S. Forces How To Out-Tough Axis

By J. NORMAN LODGE

NEW YORK, July 16. —(AP)—Those polite lads from Hell's Kitchen and Port Said may push over—those who don't at least. Their gouging, knee raising and knife wielding is strictly legal.

The new champion of "get him before he gets you" displayed his wares here. Even sergeants winced.

He is Maj. W. E. Fairbairn, trainer of the British Commandos, on loan to the United States, to show the American soldier, sailor and marine how to treat the Axis.

Maj. Fairbairn, mild-looking and mild-talking British veteran of 37 years, explained his method to an audience made up of every branch of the service as he loosed big-strapping exponents of Judo (Jiu-Jitsu) about the Hotel Astor's college room.

Before he got through, the same room looked like a picnic of the Donneybrook Chowder and Marching Society.

What is Maj. Fairbairn's method? It's a college degree Jiu-Jitsu, it's Magna Cum Laude Hell's Kitchen; on loan to the United States, to show the American soldier, sailor and marine how to treat the Axis.

He was the first foreigner ever admitted to the Kodokan Jiu-Jitsu University in Tokyo where he was awarded the black belt, first and second degree. He commanded the Shanghai police and drove terrorists from the city. Now he's teaching his method to the United Nations troops.

"There will be those of you who will be shocked by my methods," Maj. Fairbairn explained. "To you I say in war you cannot afford the luxury of squeamishness. Either you kill or capture or you will be killed or captured."

Canada And U.S. March Together In War, Peace

tion. B. P. Reimer, resident engineer; Wing Commander W. G. Webber, officer commanding No. 3 Manning Depot; Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works; Col. Allan Elliott, acting area commandant.

ARRIVED WEDNESDAY

Mr. Moffat, who arrived Wednesday from Alaska after flying along the highway route had high praise for the foresight of civil air authorities who were instrumental in establishing air bases along the route earlier in the struggle.

He spoke of the importance of the road during the war and following the war.

It is one of the few cases where the needs of war are allied to the future needs of peace, where a project that is vital to North American military needs will also serve the North American prosperity in the days to come, he said.

MARVELOUS ACHIEVEMENT

He spoke of the marvelous achievement that will have been accomplished once the road is completed.

"But all the mechanism in the world could not bring about these results if there were not a popular demand that they be achieved. And working together we shall represent a force in the world that need never know fear. It is a force that as the years and decades roll by should steadily increase in influence and strength. And it is a force that God willing will never be used except for constructive ends, or for the advantage not alone of our two great countries, but of all mankind," he reminded the listners.

"We are both of us conscious that what we have gained we must not lose, that the closer integration of our economies is not a gain for one but for both," he said.

COLLABORATION

The result has been collaboration between the two nations. The Ogdensburg Declaration resulting in the creation of a permanent joint board of defence, with its three features of immediacy, reciprocity and permanence, was the first pillar erected, he pointed out.

The Hyde Park Declaration followed. This declaration went far toward the solution of Canada's exchange problems. It too, was implemented by the creation of action agencies, the Joint War Production Board and the Joint Economic Committee.

More and more the two governments and the two peoples are working in close contact, he added.

GLOWING PICTURE

He painted a glowing picture of the happy results that would accrue to Canada and the United States, once this war is won.

Of all the countries involved, Canada and the United States will be blessed in that God willing, the end of the war will find them with homes and factories still standing, with fields tilled and herds of cattle sleek and fat.

They are almost the only countries which will not have to submit to longer range planning to the immediate necessity of physical rehabilitation.

They will have bulging grain bins and elevators, and not only will they be free from the pinch of hunger, but will feel the urge to give in order that others may again be fed, he declared.

TWO SCHOOLS

"There are two schools of thought in the United Nations; the first that we should concentrate not only all our energies but all our thinking on winning the war. The second is that while we should not be weakening one iota in our fighting we should be thinking thoughts about the future peace," he explained.

"Meanwhile we must chart a middle course between the Scylla of discouragement and depression when the enemies walk up a success, and the Charybdis of overoptimism that breeds complacency every time we gain a victory," he warned.

HARD WORK

"In other words, the better we want the new world to be, the harder, the more intensely, the more eagerly we must fight for it. We must not count the cost, whether it be in money, in self-denials, or even in life, until victory has been won. We must merely remember one thing—that every unnecessary day that is allowed to pass before we achieve victory, will mean loss in life and treasure that is unnecessary and avoidable. And it is such avoidable loss that is the loss that hurts for it has not helped win the war," the minister declared.

China Announces Re-Occupation Of City Of Tsingtien

CHUNGKING, July 16.—(AP)—The Chinese high command announced today re-occupation of Tsingtien in Chekiang province on Sunday, with 500 to 600 Japanese killed or wounded, and the remainder fleeing toward Wenchow, 25 miles to the southeast.

street; but was driven out by Red Army men who captured 160 prisoners and destroyed the staff headquarters of a Nazi division, said a dispatch to Pravda, Communist party newspaper.

CITIES HAVE FALLEN

Boguchar and Millerovo have fallen, Soviet dispatches said, but numbered Red Army troops after bitter combat, the Soviet information bureau announced.

Soviet forces engulfed the invaders overnight in the area of Voronezh and to the southeast of Millerovo, it said, and in another sector "pressed back the enemy to some extent, killing about 350 Germans and destroying five tanks."

Soviet soldiers attacks also on the central front after repulsing three enemy attacks and captured a Nazi-fortified position, wiping out about 1,000 Germans, the information bureau said.

Kalinin front defenders were reported to have held firmly against a number of German attacks and a Soviet engineering detachment was credited with killing more than 400 invaders July 1.

15-MILE WITHDRAWAL

Russian reports from the Millerovo area indicated a Red Army withdrawal of 15 miles or more to the Kalitva river, a minor tributary of the Donets river, which in turn flows into the Don.

The Berlin radio claimed German forces had killed 18,680 Russians in the Kursk-Voronezh fighting of the last two weeks and Nazi news agencies purported to show invasion formations entering Voronezh, a provincial administrative centre 300 miles south of Moscow.

(The Nazi-controlled Transocean News Agency asserted that more than 500 Soviet motor vehicles were destroyed yesterday "on completely blocked roads between the North Donets river and the Don.")

IMPORTANT POINTS

Boguchar lies on the right bank of the Don 130 miles southeast of Voronezh; Millerovo is 75 miles further south on the Moscow-Rostov railway, a river supply line of Marshal Timoshenko's defence forces.

Millerovo is 130 miles north of Rostov, the link between Russia's southern and trans-Caucasian armies, and 175 miles west of Stalingrad, industrial capital on the lower Volga. Each is of high strategic value and each is a potential target of attack.

Lend-Lease Chief Reaches Britain

LONDON, July 16.—(CP)—Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., United States lend-lease administrator, arrived in Britain today for several weeks of conferences on the lend-lease program.

An unofficial American source said Stettinius' talks will concern putting lend-lease into "reverse" to speed the day of an invasion of Europe.

Under the reverse program, Britain will supply American troops with many articles while the United States will send Britain raw materials to make up losses.

It was pointed out that this will make available for shipment to American use, thousands of tons of supplies which it would take weeks to ship across the Atlantic.

on the government to table it. This newspaper foresees the death of Mackenzie King as the essential facts of Hong Kong are not disclosed.

The facts regarding the Drew letter as available here, indicate that when the justice department withdrew its prosecution of the Ontario leader last week, Drew declared that he would make available to interested M.P.'s information to support his original comment that blood curdling facts were withheld from the public in the Hong Kong report. He wrote a long letter to Prime Minister King, Mr. Hanson, Mr. Coldwell, Mr. Blackmore and possibly others, outlining his argument for full disclosure of Hong Kong details, apparently drawing on information that had been received confidentially from the British government, the Canadian government, the department of national defence and, no doubt from Ontario sources who shifted freely because the inquiry was in secret.

Last night Mr. King explained to parliament that disclosure of details desired in the Drew letter would violate conditions under which the British government consented to Gordon Conant's mission to the Duff inquiry. He refused to table the letter, as had been requested by Mr. Coldwell.

Meanwhile, from sources not disclosed, both the Canadian Press and the British United Press obtained copies of the Drew letter and furnished lengthy extracts to their members. The B.U.P. apparently did not at first put a restraint upon publication of the letter, but in due course both agencies asked newspapers to withhold publication until authorized. After Mr. King's statement last night, neither agency released the letter for publication. A few leakages occurred prior to Mr. King's statement, such as in the Vancouver morning paper, the News-Herald and on at least one radio station, possibly a number.

Hanson Retaining House Leadership

OTTAWA, July 16.—(CP)—Conservative House Leader Hanson today acceded to the request of a Conservative source that he continue as leader of the Conservative members in the House of Commons.

The request was made to him by a 2½-hour caucus held under the chairmanship of John R. MacNicol (Toronto - Davenport). The announcement was made by A. C. Casselman (Con., Grenville - Dundas).

"The members unanimously endorsed the Conservative house leadership of Mr. Hanson and asked him to continue," Mr. Casselman said. "Mr. Hanson accepted."

Earlier word on the Mackenzie-Mowat and Arthur Meighen of Toronto was selected national Conservative leader at a party meeting here. Mr. Hanson, who heartily supported Mr. Meighen for the leadership, expressed his desire to be relieved of the responsibilities of house leadership.

Recently it had become known that, while from the standpoint of his own convenience he would have preferred to be relieved at the end of the present session, he felt duty-bound to continue as house leader if his followers urged him to do so.

More Men Needed If War To Be Won

WASHINGTON, July 16—(AP)—War Secretary Henry Stimson expressed belief today that young men and women who will be 18 on 20 would have to be drafted for the armed forces before the Axis is defeated.

Asked at his press conference whether the war department still thinks it will find it necessary for the army, Stimson replied that "we have never had a great war in which we did not find it necessary to call up both these classes."

He reminded reporters that some young married men already are being drafted under the selective service law, and said also he believed it would be necessary eventually to lower the draft age to 18.

"However," he said, "young men in that group should not feel it necessary to alter their plans for the immediate future."

Vichy Burned Up Over Move By Washington

VICHY, July 16.—(AP)—The Vichy government protested today to Washington against assignment of military representatives to Gen. Charles De Gaulle, declaring this "constitutes an attack on the sovereignty of France."

An authorized source declared it was "inadmissible" that the United States government, "which is maintaining normal relations with the French government, also maintains relations with a rebel force."

The United States department of State announced July 9 that Admiral Harold Stark and Brig. Gen. Charles Bolte had been assigned to consult in London with the national committee of the fighting French headed by Gen. De Gaulle "on all matters relating to the conduct of the war."

(The announcement did not refer to the controversy over diplomatic recognition, which the United States has not given the De Gaulle organization.

The protest was announced pending publication of the French statement concerning French warships interned at Alexandria. The latter was understood to reject all proposals to move the ships elsewhere than to French territory, on the grounds that to do so would not conform with French-German armistice terms.

The state department announced in Washington two days ago that Vichy had already rejected two proposals by President Roosevelt for removal of the nine demilitarized French naval vessels from the Egyptian war zone.

Vichy has warned that rejection would justify Britain ordering the ships moved or destroying them if removal orders were not heeded.

As indicated by the following, the French public apparently was informed concerning the American proposals only today and will did not know that they had been rejected by Vichy.

Protest Made On Ten - Cent Price Of Sugar Boxes

CALGARY, July 16.—(CP)—The 10-cent a pound price for sugar in pound packages, now general in Calgary, has resulted in a number of complaints to the Wartime Prices and Trade Board from people whose ration cards only allow them to purchase one pound at a time, A. Fraser Little, Calgary representative of the Board, said yesterday. The complainants said they formerly purchased their sugar in five-pound lots at five pounds for 45 cents, whereas it now cost them 50 cents for five pounds.

Argentine House In Secret Meet

BUENOS AIRES, July 16.—(AP)—Terming unsatisfactory the German explanation that the 4,800-ton Argentine freighter Tio Tercero was sunk by mistake, Nicolas Repetto, a Socialist deputy, proposed in the Chamber of Deputies last night that Argentina seize Axis goods in this country and create a fund to cover damages to Argentine ships in "this unrestricted submarine warfare." The Rio Tercero was sunk off the coast of the United States June 22.

The deputies adjourned to discuss today in secret session whether Argentina should break diplomatic relations with the Axis.

REJECTS PROPOSAL IN HOUSE

Ilsley Refuses Finance War By Huge New Cash Issue

Finance Minister Threatens To Walk Out Rather Than Follow Proposed Course

OTTAWA, July 16.—(CP)—Finance Minister Ilsley told the House of Commons last night that rather than attempt to finance the war by issue of Bank of Canada money he would leave the government.

He was replying to a suggestion by Arthur Slaght (Lib., Parry Sound) that he could relieve the burden on the taxpayers by issuing $1,200,000,000 of new Bank of Canada money.

This proposal, similar to that which has been consistently advanced by New Democracy members, precipitated a lively discussion and was loudly applauded by the New Democracy members and some Liberals, including G. G. McGeer (Lib., Vancouver-Burrard).

CAN'T BE DISMISSED

Shortly before adjournment Mr. McGeer reopened the discussion of national financing and declared that the idea could not be dismissed because it was tried "a few centuries ago" and was not given a fair chance.

Mr. McGeer was halted by the automatic adjournment at 11 o'clock but he said he would continue today when the House resumes consideration of budget resolutions.

Mr. Slaght suggested that while his policy might be dangerous in peace time it could be safely attempted now that the Wartime Prices and Trade Board could maintain a ceiling on prices.

"My honorable friend has a most sublime faith in the price ceiling," said Mr. Ilsley. "I wish I had as much faith in it without the issue of $1,000,000,000 in new money.

"If we put $1,000,000,000 of new money into circulation it would blow that price ceiling to kingdom come."

Prosecutions were already starting for violations of the price ceiling and a "black market" was certain to develop.

BRING INFLATION

"The only way we can hope to keep the price ceiling on is to take away from the people by taxing and borrowing so there will not be that pressure. Any person who thinks we could issue $1,000,000,000 without the wildest kind of inflation is making a terrible mistake."

The idea was as "old as the ages" Mr. Ilsley said. Germany had not attempted to finance its war by this method but by applying the highest kind of taxation coupled with strict regimentation.

"Rather than do what my honorable friend suggests I would walk out in a minute," Mr. Ilsley declared amid applause. "I would not make an attempt to run the finances of this country by running away from the hard way which is the only way." The easy way led the "abyss".

Mr. Ilsley said the preferred method of financing was by borrowing from the people an operation which did not alter the volume of bank deposits.

The second method was by borrowing from the chartered banks which was, in effect, a form of inflation. But borrowing from the Bank of Canada, or creating new Bank of Canada money, was "10 time more inflationary" than borrowing money from the banks.

WOULD BE CALAMITY

"It would be a calamity if these opinions were accepted over the country," the minister continued. Dissemination of such views by irresponsible men would destroy the entire scheme of financing the war.

"If he (Mr. Slaght) believes this he has not confidence in the financial policies of the administration and he should not support the administration." Mr. Ilsley added. "This is not the first time clever men have stood up in parliament and advised this kind of thing."

"When we create $1,000,000,000 in new Bank of Canada notes or deposits we will loose inflationary tendencies of tremendous power," the minister said.

The discussion arose during consideration of the budget income tax amendments in committee of the whole house.

Conservative house leader Hanson said all history rejected the easy way of financing a war as proposed by Mr. Slaght and he reminded Mr. Hanson of speeches which the Conservative leader had heard some years ago from Mr. McGeer.

REDUCE INTEREST

Mr. Slaght urged issue of $1,200,000,000 in national currency to finance government requirements and reduce the interest burden carried by the Dominion.

Mr. Ilsley said that the government in its present fiscal policy was following the advice of recognized authority and had knowledge of other governments to assist it.

Suggestions such as those made by Mr. Slaght had been thoroughly examined and rejected.

36 Cents Day Living Quota, M.P. Contends

OTTAWA, July 16.—(CP)—On the basis of new income tax provisions a married man is expected to support his wife and children for 36 cents each a day, Arthur Slaght (Lib., Parry Sound) said in the House of Commons last night.

He reviewed exemptions allowed for married men under budget proposals. A married man receiving $3,000 a year would pay $884 in income tax while a single man with the same income would pay $1,064.

"That means the married man is expected to support his wife for a year for $180," said Mr. Slaght.

MARRIAGE COSTLY

"I thought we desired to encourage marriage and have a vigorous, growing nation. Under this taxation it becomes expensive for a man to marry."

A married man receiving $2,000 annually and who had two children had a tax exemption $396 greater than that of the single man.

"That means he has 36 cents a day to maintain each one of them," said Mr. Slaght.

He favored increasing the amount required by the army by $4,500,000 so that the minimum pay of men in the forces could be raised to $50 monthly. Young officers in Canada should be exempt while in Canada as they were serving overseas.

Saboteurs Caught Wading To Shore

WASHINGTON, July 16—(AP)—The United States coast guard announced yesterday that a 21-year-old guardsman, on beach patrol at Amagansett, Long Island, N.Y., surprised four of the eight alleged Nazi saboteurs coming ashore. He reportedly waded ashore carrying explosives.

The guardsman, John C. Cullen of Bayside, Long Island, sounded the alarm which eventually led to the capture of the four men he surprised and four others.

In a narrative description drawn from official coast guard files, the announcement disclosed that Cullen at one time feared he was about to be hypnotized by one of the saboteurs.

The official record quoted another coast guardsman who participated in the search for the four saboteurs as saying he saw "a long, thin object, about 70 feet long, about 150 feet off shore," while Cullen was reported to have heard the noise of powerful diesel engines just off shore.

Reduction In Tariff Rates Is Demanded

OTTAWA, July 16.—(CP)—Demand for an early start by Canada on a tariff reduction policy was made in the house of commons yesterday by Gordon Ross (Lib., Moose Jaw) as the house in committee of the whole resumed consideration of the budget resolutions.

The one criticism he had of Finance Minister Ilsley's budget was that it made no move in the direction of a free-trade policy, Mr. Ross said.

"We have heard a great deal from the democratic leaders of the world in connection with freeing the channels of trade when the war is over, in order that all democratic countries may have access to raw materials," said Mr. Ross.

TIME TO START

"If we are ever going to do that it is time we started. If we cannot remove these trade barriers now, when there is no necessity for them, we will have a hard time to do it after the war."

Mr. Ross said a "certain part" of Canada is being over-industrialized because of the war and when the war was over that part of Canada would oppose every effort to lower the tariff, with the result that other parts of Canada would suffer.

Mr. Ross was speaking on a budget amendment to the customs tariff on certain machinery imported into Canada for production of oil from tar sands. The machinery enters free but some duty remains on motive power used in its operation.

At a time when there was such a pressing necessity for new oil supplies, said Mr. Ross, he could see no reason why there should be any duty on any machinery imported for the production of oil.

URGES DEVELOPMENT

C. E. Johnston (N.D., Bow River), said the government should go further than merely reducing the duty on oil production equipment entering Canada. Practically nothing had been done in development of the Alberta tar sands.

The United States was proposing plants to take gasoline and oil from coal, while Canada, in the tar sands, had one of the largest potential oil fields in the world.

Trade Minister MacKinnon said studies of the possible tar sands development was under way.

Mr. Johnston said a committee should be set up when parliament reconvenes to study the progress being made in taking oil from the tar sands and the possibilities of producing synethetic rubber as well.

Munitions Minister Howe told Conservative house leader Hanson that a study of New Brunswick oil shale was almost completed. He had not seen the final reports on this possible oil development, but an intermediate report was "not too hopeful" on the amount of oil to be obtained from the shale.

Mr. Howe said the Alberta tar sands examination was thorough. Da's on the sands was being checked, refinery results were being examined, and products were being tested. Drilling was undertaken to find the depth of the sands.

Such complete examination was necessary to see whether large-scale development was warranted.

The house then approved the budget resolution providing for free entry of machinery for producing oil from shale and from oil sands by mining operations.

LEGAL OPINION

Premier Declares Tabling Of Drew Letter Would Violate Order Of Secrecy

OTTAWA, July 16.—(CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the House of Commons last night that he would not table in the house the letter sent him by Lt.-Col. George A. Drew, Ontario Conservative leader, criticizing the report of the Duff royal commission on the Hong Kong inquiry.

Mr. King said the letter would not be tabled because it was a violation of the order of secrecy under which the proceedings of the Royal Commission inquiring into the Hong Kong expedition were conducted.

Mr. King said that before acceding to the request of M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. house leader, for tabling of the Drew letter he decided to get legal opinion as to whether it would be proper for him to do so.

OBTAINED OPINION

Through the justice department he obtained an opinion from George A. Campbell of Montreal, government counsel at the inquiry conducted by Sir Lyman P. Duff, chief justice of Canada.

Mr. King read the opinion to the house.

Mr. Campbell's conclusion were summarized in two paragraphs of his letter to the Prime Minister, as follows:

"If . . . Mr. Drew's communication is tabled by you before the House of Commons I am of the opinion that you will be violating a condition under which the government of the United Kingdom consented to the disclosure to the commissioners and counsel of these telegrams (referred to by Mr. Drew in his letter).

"I am, moreover, of the opinion that Mr. Drew's communication purports to contain a considerable number of extracts from evidence and reference to exhibits which do not appear in the published report of the commissioner and the appendix to it. If, therefore, you should table the document you are, in my opinion, to that extent participating in and thereby condoning a violation of the order of secrecy with which the proceedings in camera were to be and were in fact conducted."

CITES ORDER

When Mr. King had finished reading the letter from Mr. Campbell, he read the order-in-council clothing the commissioner in an inquiry containing the armed forces with the powers and authority of a superior court judge, including the specific power to enforce any order to safeguard the secrecy of an inquiry held in camera.

Conservative House Leader Hanson asked when the order had been passed, and Mr. King gave the date—March 2 this year. He said Mr. Hanson would find the order had been tabled previously in the House.

Mr. King read communications exchanged yesterday between Mr. Campbell and Chief Justice Sir Lyman Duff, in which the latter authorized production of a statement he had made at the opening of the inquiry requiring all participants of the inquiry to keep proceedings secret.

"In these circumstances I hope my honorable friend will not expect me to table the letter because I do not think it is proper for me to do so in my position as prime minister," said Mr. King.

DISCLOSED FACTS.

Mr. Campbell's letter said the letter from Col. Drew . . . who was named a commissioner on the nomination of Mr. Hanson—"purports to disclose a very considerable number of facts and to refer to the contents of several documents said to have been put in evidence before the commissioner during the recent inquiry."

Mr. Campbell said he was "not free to discuss the accuracy or inaccuracy of any such references."

At the outset of the inquiry, he said, the commissioner had been given various powers, "including specifically the power and authority of making and enforcing any order made by him concerning any inquiry held in camera in order to safeguard the secrecy of such inquiry."

The inquiry was held in camera at the order of the commissioner.

PRESERVE SECRECY

"In my opinion," said Mr. Campbell, "all counsel who participated in the inquiry were bound by, and by their continued presence, acquiesced in that ruling. It flows from such ruling that all persons, including counsel, were specifically enjoined as to their duty to preserve secrecy as to testimony given, documents produced and all other evidence placed before the commissioner, and that order directed all persons not knowingly to infringe upon such secrecy."

At the conclusion of the hearing, Mr. Campbell's letter continued, all counsel concerned received notice from the commissioner requiring them on the day of the final hearing of oral argument to deliver up to the secretary of the commission all and all transcripts of evidence, exhibits and copies thereof, written arguments and copies thereof, notes of evidence and any and all other writings and documents relating in any way whatsoever to the matters in question."

"It appears from page 33 of Mr. Drew's communication (to the Prime Minister) that it purports largely to be based upon his written argument to the commissioner, of which presumably therefore he retained a copy in his possession," said Mr. Campbell.

"In his letter he gives a number of verbatim quotations from the transcript of evidence and exhibits.

"Mr. Drew's letter purports to give the effect of a number of confidential communications received by the government of Canada from the government of the United Kingdom, the disclosure of which was only consented to by the government of the United Kingdom subject to a specific condition that the disclosure was to be limited to the commissioner and counsel only, and only for the purpose of the inquiry; and the commissioner was not permitted to reproduce those communications in his report.

VIOLATE CONDITION

"Any disclosure, therefore, even to the House of Commons, would in my opinion be a violation of the substance of that condition."

Mr. Hanson, rising when Mr. King had concluded, said the order-in-council just read by the Prime Minister had never been drawn to his attention. It had been kept secret. It should never have been passed since the promise had been made that there would be a full public argument.

He had asked that the inquiry evidence be placed on the table so the public and the House would be in a position to judge on the accuracy or otherwise of the report.

Under the Inquiries Act the report was not immune from criticism or discussion.

There was ample precedent for discussion and criticism of such a report, said Mr. Hanson. During the First Great War a Shell Committee had been held and presided over by the Chief Justice of Ontario. The Liberal party had tried to tear that report to pieces "with what result I do not know."

GALLIPOLI REPORT

Mr. Hanson referred also to an attack on a report on the Gallipoli campaign in the British house.

The Hong Kong inquiry must have been held in secret on motion of the government, Mr. Hanson said.

Mr. Hanson said the Duff report was not "sacrosanct" and there is no other category than a court judgment. The evidence of the inquiry should be tabled.

"It is in the public interest, and in the national interest, that this evidence should be laid upon the table," Mr. Hanson said. "I point out that evidence any discussion will be wholly unsatisfactory to the members and to the public.

"It is not in the national interest that this should be kept secret and I protest against this secrecy."

Mr. Hanson recalled that Mr. King had first said he would table the letter if any member would take the responsibility of asking that it be tabled.

REVERSE OPINION

"Now a second thought has occasioned a reverse of opinion," said Mr. Hanson. "In the meantime, I am informed, the press agencies have carried large proportions if not all of the letter, and all that remains is to release it for publication."

He urged the Prime Minister, whether he tabled the letter or not, to release any censorship that prevented its publication.

"Let this letter be published and let the chips fall where they may," Mr. Hanson said.

Hundreds of people now knew what was in the letter.

"If Col. Drew has transgressed let him answer for it," Mr. Hanson said. "He will answer, and welcome the opportunity."

"He will welcome the publicity," a Liberal member interjected.

"Yes, he will welcome the publicity this gets," said Mr. Hanson. "This publicity has made him the biggest man in the public life of Canada today."

"NEXT TORY LEADER?"

"Next leader of the Conservative Party?" a member asked.

"Well, you might go farther and fare worse," Mr. Hanson replied.

"Let us have a free press," the Conservative house leader continued.

He had heard the publication of the letter had been suppressed.

"I protest and I ask the Prime Minister—if he won't table the letter—to remove the censorship and let the people of Canada judge." Mr. Hanson said. "I ask that censorship be removed and removed immediately."

Mr. Coldwell, the C.C.F. house leader, said he had taken the responsibility Tuesday of asking that the letter be tabled since he believed there was nothing in it of value to the enemy. His copy had come to him in the usual way through the mail and was not marked private or personal.

Today the Prime Minister had shown him the legal opinion he had received from Mr. Campbell.

"I am not a lawyer and I can't dispute a legal opinion," said Mr. Coldwell.

The Prime Minister must take the responsibility of withholding the letter on the advice of counsel.

Mr. Coldwell said he had no quarrel with Mr. King if he decided to withhold the letter on that basis, but in his opinion there was nothing in the document which would help the enemy. He said the Prime Minister would have been better advised had he sought an opinion on tabling the letter from someone not interested in the inquiry.

The C.C.F. house leader said he represented a western constituency from which young men had gone with the units sent to Hong Kong. Their parents were disturbed, and the parents of other men who might be moved overseas were also worried by the fear there might be a repetition of Hong Kong expedition occurences in the future.

When the chief justice sat as a commissioner he was not acting as chief justice. He had been vested with the powers of a judge as commissioner.

New Democracy Leader Blackmore said matters raised in the Drew letter should be discussed in the house. He would refer to whether they should be discussed in open session, but there were reservations of which the house should be made aware.

SOMETHING WRONG

There was something wrong and those responsible should be punished should they be found at fault for blundering in respect to the expedition.

Defence Minister Ralston, the next speaker, said some remarks made in the discussion were premature. There seemed to be an assumption there would be no opportunity to discuss the report, but discussion would be allowed.

As defence minister he was perfectly happy to have the report fully discussed.

The inquiry commissioner had received no suggestion from the government as to the methods he should employ, and the commissioner himself had decided the inquiry should be secret. That was not found with this decision because some matters could not be disclosed. It would not have been possible to hold open sessions on some documents and closed sessions on others.

Certain other statements made available to the commissioner and counsel were made public the agreement with the United Kingdom on their being made available would be violated. The commissioner had made available in his report the evidence he thought fit to reveal.

"After all, he is the chief justice of Canada, with a reputation second to none among the jurists of this continent," said Col. Ralston. "Some house applauded."

Col. Ralston said he deprecated any suggestion that there should be any distinction between Sir Lyman Duff as chief justice of Canada and as a royal commissioner or that his calibre would be different in one role or another.

FINDINGS UNBIASED

"When we have a man like Sir Lyman Duff, assisted by such eminent counsel, it seems to me that the people and the members of this house have a right to consider that the findings can be accepted as the findings of disinterested men," he said.

There would be full opportunity for house discussion of the report, but members should not "get out of focus because a gentleman who happened to be counsel and does not like the decision has written a letter to the prime minister."

Col. Ralston read an editorial from the Toronto Globe and Mail which stated that under the circumstances it was "imperative" that the Hong Kong inquiry be held in secret.

J. S. Roy (Ind., Gaspe) entered the discussion.

He said parents of volunteers in Gaspe were apprehensive about this incident and he urged that the house meet in secret for a discussion, with the evidence disclosed to members.

Mr. King closed the discussion and observed that the secrecy of the inquiry had been left entirely to the chief justice to decide upon.

With regard to the letter he felt as Prime Minister, a special responsibility respecting any attack or insinuation that might be made upon the judiciary.

ATTACK PROHIBITED

He observed that the rules of the house forbade any such attacks and suggested that those party leaders who had copies of the letter would agree that it contained passages that could not be construed otherwise than as attacks upon the chief justice.

"The worst feature of the letter was the implications which it cast upon the whole government of the chief justice." Mr. King said.

Sir Lyman Duff was not only chief justice of Canada but a member of the King's Privy Council of the United Kingdom. No member of that body was held in greater respect.

With regard to censorship as referred to by Mr. Hanson, the Prime Minister said:

"I have not interfered with censorship at any time and I do not propose to do so at this time."

Mr. Coldwell had questioned the Prime Minister's choice of Mr. Campbell, a counsel to the commission, when he sought an opinion on the Drew letter.

TWO REASONS

There had been two reasons for choosing Mr. Campbell. The first was that he was in a position to know all the circumstances. The second was that few if any counsel in Canada have a higher reputation for ability than has Mr. Campbell."

The letter was being withheld from the table of the House because "I do not think that this house or anyone connected with it should be a party to violation of the undertakings under which much of the information before the commission was obtained."

That undertaking was as much the Canadian people's as that of the government and members of the house had the same responsibility as the government in keeping it.

Mr. Coldwell asked the Prime Minister if he thought any of the quotations in Col. Drew's letter were from confidential evidence.

Mr. King replied that Mr. Campbell must have thought so or he would not have advised the government that tabling the letter would be a violation of the order of secrecy.

T. L. Church (Con. Toronto-Broadview) attempted to ask a question but he was called to order and the house went on with other business.

Number One

A Winnipeg man has the distinction of being the first person in Canada to be convicted of hoarding groceries. He had apparently converted his basement into a warehouse and accumulated enough canned goods to start a store.

That he is the only person in Canada guilty of carrying foresight to this unpatriotic length is not to be supposed, and there may be others whose hoardings would make his look like supplies bought for a week-end picnic. But it was his misfortune to be brought to account—a risk which every hoarder runs, and which it is to be hoped will overtake all the others.

Without denying that mercy should season justice, there are many offences where the seasoning should be more generously dispensed. Hoarding supplies in a time of national scarcity and peril is so closely akin to treason that the distinction has to be explained. There have been plenty of official admonitions against that sort of thing, and plenty of warnings that the severe penalties provided in the law will be imposed upon offenders.

In the nature of things, it is impossible that all hoarders can be caught. But, also in the nature of things, the heavier the punishment that is handed out to those who are caught the fewer will dare to take the risk. Those who are faithfully obeying the regulations have a right to expect that deliberate violators will be dealt with as saboteurs.

Those Ships Should Be Fighting

M. Laval rejected proposals of President Roosevelt that the Vichy warships at Alexandria be removed to an American port, to a neutral port, or to Martinique, under guarantee that they would be restored to France at the end of the war. Laval insists that they be left at Alexandria or allowed to proceed to a nearby French port—meaning a port under Vichy control, of course.

The reasons for the rejection of the President's suggestions are obvious. Laval wants the ships kept where Hitler would have some chance of getting them if he should be successful in his attack on Egypt; or moved to a port where they could be turned over to the Fuehrer when-ever he demanded them.

Washington has made clear that neither of these things is going to happen. Should Alexandria be imperilled, the ships will be either destroyed or removed beyond the reach of Vichy and Adolf.

As the ships have to be disposed of against Laval's wishes, the logical thing to do would be to rearm them and turn them over to the Fighting French. Vichy, having rejected proposals for their safe-keeping, has no longer any rightful claim on them. It is henceforth none of M. Laval's business what becomes of them, and he need not be consulted as to what is to be done with them.

Those ships do not belong to the Petain cabinet, and never did. They are the property of the people of France, and should be fighting for their liberty.

Why Not War Bonds?

Discussion of the income tax proposals in the new budget has been deferred until other and subsequent sections of the bill are dealt with. The inference drawn at Ottawa is that some changes are to be made in these provisions.

One change could be made without defeating the purpose of the taxation, and which would make the scheme more consistent; in respect to the deductions a taxpayer is allowed to make from the refundable portion of his tax. He is allowed to subtract from the "compulsory savings" levy the amount which he pays during the year on the principal of a mortgage on his home, the amount he pays to a pension fund, and the amount he pays as premiums on life insurance—within fixed limits, of course.

Why should he not be allowed to deduct the amount he has paid for war bonds or savings certificates? Making these investments a "saving" in every sense of the term; quite as real as paying off part of a mortgage, paying for a pension, or buying life insurance. The taxpayer in buying these securities cuts down the amount of his spendings and thus helps to prevent inflation. And the money goes directly into the war chest.

There is no apparent reason why a person should be descriminated against for putting his savings into war bonds and savings certificates, as against another person who uses his surplus earnings to pay off a mortgage, secure himself a pension, or carry life insurance—excellent as these alternative investments are.

The Work Must Go On

A five man commission, headed by Mr. Justice Richards of Winnipeg, is to investigate the reasons for the on-and-off fashion in which shipyards at the Pacific coast are operating. It is time something was done to put an end to the interruptions there, which have cut production by a large fraction of the splendid output that was maintained until recent months.

Whatever the causes, the net result is that as the threat of an invasion of British Columbia grew more real the number of ships turned out at the British Columbia yards grew smaller. The taxpayers of the country, who are footing the bills, are not getting the service they require and are paying for. Whoever is to blame should be identified, and relieved of power to tie up the works.

The coast yards are not the only places where munitions-production has been halted or stopped recently by "labor troubles". Two marked instances occurred in the province of Quebec within the last two weeks. If the commission can put continuity into the operation of the yards, it might be worth while to give it a roaming assignment to undertake the like duty wherever production is stopped, or threatened with stoppage, by disagreements between employers and employees.

Means have been provided to adjust such disagreements without either party interrupting or slowing down the output of supplies. But providing the machinery for peaceful adjustment has not been enough. Perhaps what is needed is a standing authority which can take the law to any locality, and investigate and settle disputes without delay.

—V—

One item of expenditure which Canadian taxpayers will find no fault with is $6,384,080 to pay for wheat that is to be given to the people of Greece during the present year. Unquestionable reports have shown that thousands of people in that unfortunate country have died of starvation since the Axis troops moved in, stole the food supplies and disrupted the production and trade whereby the population lived. Arrangements have been made, it is to be supposed, by which the wheat will be delivered directly to the Greeks, with no chance for the gangsters to get hands on it.

J. A. Macrae, Inspector of Protestant Indian schools, in his annual report says: "No very marked line has yet appeared between the boarding and industrial schools. The latter have not yet assumed the character that their name suggests. Small children are too tender years for industrial training, and the children physically unfit for training that requires strength, have been taken to these institutions. The consequence is that in many instances they continue to be little more than boarding schools, though supplied with industrial plant applicable for carrying on industrial work. The government supplies means, directly or indirectly, and expects pupils to be trained as artisans or agriculturists. But the churches control the schools and aim often primarily at the formation of religious character, to this end obtaining as pupils children of most tender years."

Compulsory Saving

One essentially important purpose of the budget is to reduce the purchasing power of the people. This is done by taking more from them in taxes, but more particularly by the compulsory saving, a new feature of this budget. It applies not only to personal incomes but also to the earnings of corporations, the excess profits tax being increased to 100 per cent, with 20 per cent refundable after the war.

Compulsory saving is being carried farther than it is in Britain, while it is only in the discussion stage in the U.S. The Canadian Government has shown commendable initiative in this, as it did with the price and wage ceiling. —Winnipeg Free Press.

Entire Debt Picture Of Canada Must Now Be Reviewed

By HAROLD L. WEIR

Representatives of the provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba are meeting with the Dominion Government to find a solution to the farm debt crisis that has caused unnecessary distress to 200,000 farmers in the three prairie provinces.

That such a solution should be found, upon definite and realistic grounds is known to every Canadian whose social conscience has not been deadened by the soporific doctrine of "sound money."

Harold L. Weir

Those who understand the urgency of the situation and look at the problem from the national standpoint, rather than from the narrow and selfish view of special privilege, realize that the issue is long and dangerously overdue.

Since 1929, debt has been pyramided in these western provinces by a cruel, unjust and blind economic policy for which the Dominion Government is solely responsible.

It has come to a point where it not only works a savage injustice upon individuals, but also imperils the security and well-being of the nation.

"Sound Money"

The so-called "sound money" policy under which this country strives to operate is nothing more nor less than a pagan abomination.

It is financial totalitarianism under which the individual is enslaved to an artificial money structure in exactly the same manner that the individual material is enslaved to a personalized Nazi state.

The Canadian financial structure, under this policy, is made to take on all the omnipotence and sanctity wherewith Hitler endeavors to clothe his fabulous Reich.

The financial institutions are not required to prove their right to exist, as the individual must do. No effort is made to fit them into a rational economic system. On the contrary, the economic system is wrenched and contorted to fit their needs.

This sanctity accorded these artificially created institutions is sheer paganism, just as the worship of gold and jewel bedizened idols is paganism. It is a continued affront to the dignity and inherent worth of the individual human soul. It is a prostitution of human liberty.

It is a policy flagrantly opposed to Christian teaching, and has absolutely no place in an enlightened democracy which aims above all things, to be maintained on the basis of the Christian ethic.

'In the U. S.

Proponents of the "sound money" policy have especially assailed criticism in the past by declaring that any contravention of that policy is logically impossible.

So they have done it this way for 50 years," they say, in effect, "therefore, there is no other way of doing it."

If that is the case, President Franklin D. Roosevelt of the United States is something of a layman.

For President Roosevelt did do it. In spite of the specious logic and traditionalism of the "sound money" apostles, he took a firm stand against the old fetish and, on assuming office in March, 1933, he literally drove the money changers from the temple.

By setting up government agencies and cutting through the monopolies of orthodox finance, he gave the people of the United States, particularly the farmers, a cheap money policy, with the result that he restored to 6,000,000 American farmers ownership of their farms and freedom from the deadly incubus of unpayable debt.

Doing boldly what traditional financiers declare cannot be done, he gave the farmers of the United States parity prices, economic freedom and equal prosperity with all other industries.

In Canada

In 1935, Prime Minister Mackenzie King received the greatest majority of votes ever accorded to any leader in our history under the banner "make money your servant and not your master."

The Bank of Canada was established as a publicly-owned institution and its policy was announced thus:

"Currency and credit in terms of human needs."

This high-sounding policy, so overwhelmingly endorsed by the people of Canada, has never been put into effect. It has never been implemented.

Why?

Canadians have been charged the highest interest rates that prevail anywhere in the English-speaking world.

Contrary to law, Alberta has been boycotted by mortgage companies for home-building since 1929. The Dominion Housing Act, which not in any way subject to provincial laws, similar to loans made by the Dominion Farm Loan Board, was never permitted to operate in Alberta because the mortgage companies absolutely dominate the politics of Dr. Clark, deputy minister of finance, who directs the Dominion Housing Act.

It is time to end these abuses. It is time to demand an end to the so-called "sound money" policy which is nothing but a ruinous high interest rate policy that for years has caused unnecessary hardship and now is retarding the war effort of Canada's most vital war industry—farming.

More than that, it is time to review the entire debt picture of Canada.

The Dominion Government plans, quite properly, to take over all the unused money, above the barest living expenses, for war purposes.

This is an essential measure of total taxation for total war.

It cannot be avoided and the Canadian people are prepared to submit to the sacrifice.

But what will happen to private debt under these circumstances? Obviously it will be financial can surrender all his earnings to the Dominion Government's war chest, and not pay off his debt as well, since one dollar, by no feat of legerdemain, can be made to do the work of two.

The entire debt structure of the country must be carefully considered. It is the clear intention of Ottawa to convert us into a nation of bankrupts in the process of winning the war.

There Are Plenty Of Brass Hats In Civil Life, Too

By LEONARD BACON IN THE SATURDAY REVIEW OF LITERATURE (NEW YORK)

Let me state at once that it is not my purpose to attack the military mind. The military mind differs little from the literary mind or the scientific mind except in the subject matter. The same laws apply to it, and its successes or failures correspond to those of the rest.

But the term "brass hat", which was coined by them of old time to describe the condition of mind not unknown in the armed services, has been hung around unjustly on our generals and admirals, it is believed, with the normal amount of unfairness. We ourselves have recently experienced some of the end results of this condition of mind in a most painful form in our national vanity. It has left a bad taste in millions of mouths.

And therefore we are no doubt-less prepared to ask for penalties on the officers whose bad manners and insufficient use of brass at their disposal set us back on our heels at Pearl Harbour. But such would be a mistake, if we think that disciplining two unfortunate men will remove an evil that is not so much professional as part of human nature.

Experience

In order to make this clear, it is necessary to go through the perfunctory business, so like a brass hat's, of defining a brass hat, and this seems to be about it.

A brass hat is a person of some experience in a position of some authority, who sets a higher value upon experience than on ability or intelligence. Any one who lives long enough can have experience, but it does not follow that one learns from it. The luckless commanders in Hawaii clearly had the brass hat mind. They were unwilling to take into consideration anything that was not in their own experience. They had risen to the tops of their respective trees by refusing to expect the unexpected. A desperate and treacherous act which had only a ten percent chance of success come within an act of hundred percent success, because these officers, probably early in their careers, had any faint interest in eccentric methods of warfare carefully eradicated from their minds by a firm much like the men they themselves subsequently became.

Everyone who has ever served in an army can think of such instances. I myself knew a highly intelligent officer who was sent to Coventry in an undesirable post in the Canal Zone, because he had refused to let the machine-gun company to get more than the specified number of shots per minute and the performance of gun of the times. The brass hat above him taught apparently that this above performance was insult not to be borne and literally penalized ingenuity which had been exercised for the good of the service.

A few episodes like that when an ensign and a second lieutenant had just been commissioned would go a long way to explain, though not to excuse, the fact that an admiral now and then, or several took some measures against probable sabotage and none against possible attack. They and the naval aviation chief who was so certain about a universal negative were sad proofs that experience is not a satisfactory substitute for imaginative ability.

Blunders

But men who lack this quality are not a special product of fleets and armies, though their blunders at critical times are often more conspicuous than those of poets and scientists. There are plenty of men, fortunately, in both services, and in high position, who are in no sense brass hats. General MacArthur is chiefly the antithesis of everything the term implies. And apparently the race of good admirals is not extinct, though they are shy birds and only discoverable by specially trained ornithologists.

However, my point is that the brass hat exists in huge numbers outside of the armed services and is quite as great a pest and danger in civil life as anywhere else. Most banks are full of brass hats. There is apt to be one at least in every publishing house. Dozens of authors are brass hats. Great law firms, great corporations, great labor unions, are lousy with them. They abound in universities, where a specially cock-sure breed has been developed partly by art and partly by accident.

And finally both houses of the national legislature have collections that know no rivals except each other. It is doubtless a national spirit of competition which has made the House and the Senate follow so hot on the trail of fairly ingenious imitators. The men who voted against fortifying Guam must naturally resent an irrefutable comparable, though not equal, to their own.

Congressional

The congressional brass hat enjoys one special advantage over his less favored military or naval brother. He cannot be court-martialed. And to impeach him is a herculean or rather Augean task. Yet he can commit what amounts to treason by betraying American troops on their way to Iceland. The men would have been in actually danger by the Senator's fault, had it suited Hitler's plans. Yet that particular senator squawked for blood like a catamount when Pearl Harbor laid his surge of isolationism.

Another good specimen is a congressman, who talked it all over with Ribbentrop just before Munich and has been from time to time a great comfort to the Nazi enemy. His efficient secretary has recently been convicted of perjury in connection with what appears to have been traffic with a power now at war with us. That gives forth a smell. But what I like best about that congressman is an episode of thirty-three years ago. He was then captain of the Harvard football team. And a photograph of the time shows him in the act of not blocking Frank Sullivan's dropkick, though not a soul is between the hero and his legitimate prey. He is symbolic. Ever since he has blocked the things he ought not to have blocked, and left unblocked the things he ought to have blocked, with the result that there is no health in him.

Self-Respect

Nevertheless that will never prevent him from performing the natural function of the brass hat. To look coldly at a subordinate and point out non-existent or wholly insignificant flaws, to get out of bed on the wrong side and make a whole regiment know it," to increase morale by damning a junior for self-respect, these are the fruits by which the brass hat is known.

And there is not one of us but has reason to curse the diffidence implanted in a young officer, who, when a sergeant reported the rustling of wings, picked up in a microphone while the danger was yet a hundred miles from shore, was afraid of giving a false alarm that he failed to give a true one. That boy will not dare an order or breath again. But he is almost excusable, if, as is almost certain, he had witnessed the humiliation of those whom the brass hat considered to be overzealous. He can't stick his neck out. How he wishes now that he had stuck it out then! But even after the event, four brass hats would recommend that.

Nevertheless, as I trust I have made clear, he is not particular point in looking for the brass hat at staff headquarters. He is endemic and can be found wherever a man has had a chance to grow self-important. If imagination and ability are not there, a brass hat will be.

"I'm bringing you my laundry as my contribution for aid to China—but see that you don't overcharge me!!"

Voice Of Germany

By F. JOSS IN THE LONDON STAR

There is a pile of recent German newspapers on my desk.

German journals are not meant to convey a true idea of what is really going on in Germany, but these reveal many things that Dr. Goebbels would like to keep hidden.

Take advertisements. There are columns and columns of barter offers. Chiefly, two articles are sought: Children's shoes and radio sets.

If you investigate the kind of goods offered for babies' shoes you discover tragedy. What German mothers have to offer are men's clothes and men's shoes.

The radio sets today are decidedly short of these articles, and women who have them to spare are not wives but widows.

Obituary announcements are not only rationed; they are also standardized. Mourning must be expressed in phrases approved by the authorities. But you can still read:

"My beloved son Hans has followed his father and brother into a soldier's death at the Eastern Front."

Fate

One of the most popular phrases is a reference to "an inexplicable fate" used when that some German mothers refuse to accept Hitler's reasons for making war.

That assumption is borne out by numerous articles in women's periodicals on "Could this war have been avoided?"

The latest argument, produced by Labor Dictator Sauckel in a speech in Austria, is that the Germans are short of labor because of the war; they had worked so hard and well that other countries became envious, and now the war had come they had to work even harder.

Warrants for the arrest of "fugitive workers" are a new feature in German newspapers. Absentees are punished and punished exactly like deserters from the army. That procedure dates from before Hitler's speech which made the procedure against these fugitives "legal."

Most of the fugitive workers are youths of 16 or 18. Reared in the Nazi spirit, some of them have become almost as blackcoat burglars or highwaymen to slavery in the factories.

Nazi Germany says there are no social problem in Germany. No worker gets more than the barest minimum on which he can live.

Mystery

A real mystery are official complaints about German children who shoot at railway trains from the windows of houses and on them from bridges, and destroy signal boxes and other railway property.

Is it real sabotage? Are children the real culprits? Nobody outside Germany knows.

Papers are discussing the best way of dealing with children whose fathers are in the army. One paper suggests that even complete strangers should hit bad-mannered children "right across the face." Others recommend solitary arrest on bread and water as a valuable method."

Growing resentment and lack of understanding between services and home front is noticeable behind the official "politeness campaign."

Goebbels, I read, "completely underestimate the soldiers' sacrifice," and accuse them of taking all the credit. They are also rude to soldiers on leave.

On the other hand, soldiers on leave find their front-line manners home.

Generally, the papers take sides with the soldiers in these disputes.

There are numerous court sensations against German women who have had affairs with foreign prisoners of war and foreign slave workers. The terms of imprisonment are drastic.

The two and a half million of slaves are treated as pariahs. The "untermenschen" are branded with large letters sewn on their ragged clothes: "P" stands for Jew, "P" for Pole, "O" for Ost-Arbeiter (Eastern worker)—a term applied to Russians, Ukrainians, Balts and others.

Mass Rising

German newspapers reveal nothing of the true reaction of the people to air raids and short rations.

My chief impression from Goebbels' press is this:

The German people want to survive. The "fate" spectre and the S.S. (Hitler's Black Guards) remain more dangerous than bombs, overwork and starvation, there will be no mass rising.

What of Hitler's prestige? German papers find it necessary to print many long articles aimed to bring home to readers that Hitler's prestige is a great asset. They are told that there is no such thing as "men behind Hitler," and that only posterity will be able to judge his strategy properly.

War Meals

By J. B. PRIESTLEY, BRITISH AUTHOR.

I am not a poor man and I am a man who enjoys a good dinner. So that you may bet your bonts that I am going to take my fair share of any decent food that's going.

I have had just one small piece of steak, about three inches square, in the last 12 months. I have not had a single egg in the house for a year. I don't think I have had even one square inch of fried ham. In normal times I eat plenty of fruit, but now of course there just isn't any fruit. Oranges go to our children. Cream vanished long ago.

I have a sweet tooth but I do not complain that I get a bit of dessert that seems to be anything like sweet enough, more than once every two or three weeks.

We aren't hungry and we are pretty healthy but except on a few special occasions, dining is no longer much of a pleasure. All the best food, especially the best meat, goes to our men in the services, and of course nobody grumbles about that.

War Good For The Complexion

By ROBERT M. YODER IN THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS.

The worst thing about the small hardships civilians are asked to endure in this war is chiefly laughed at, I think, by a little bird-song just received in the mail. A newspaper column, it complains, is dull, and being forced to walk. If you have looked forward to this prospect as a contribution you would have to make to the war, a nuisance but a constructive one, you will be resentment at hearing that you are going to have the time of your life. War, it appears, can be more darned fun than anything.

"Soon we will run out of tires and cannot use our automobiles" says the writer. "A look of stoicism comes on the faces of most people. But as for me, all I say is 'Goody, hurrah!'"

So as to have no questions about gender, it is a lady writer who is saying goody, hurrah, but there are men of same gladsomt cast of mind, and this lass simply is a little gladder than the others.

"I will have to walk 2 to 20 miles a day," she exults, "and what will that mean? I will have a lovely rose-suffused complexion, a clear slippery eye, a steady broad-smiling nervous system, an easy stride, and an earth-spurning tread. My very soul will become so much nicer."

Futile

Anyone who fears that wars are futile should be reassured by that. This war is good for the complexion, not to mention the slippery eye. Nor is that all. She adds that the war will usher in a new era of endurance visiting.

Instead of just dropping in for six or eight hours of an endless round of visiting with friends she says, friends will move in and stay for three or four days at a time.

"I have stored a month's provisions," she writes, "and we will have leisure, talk. We will talk about our souls. We will read aloud long books like 'War and Peace' We will have a string tournament. You see how wonderful it will be! Again, we will really know our friends."

And along with knowing our friends (and that's the last we'll see of them) we will all feel peachy, my sunny friend continues, due to simply picking them up and laying them down, picking them up and laying them down.

She seems to bet anyone in this big round world—I get the impression she thinks the equator is a ribbon — that walking will improve his disposition until he barely recognizes himself. Why, she says, she always was full of hope, full of exubrance and good ideas," she vows, if we will only walk 10 miles a day for two weeks. No one can try that experience, she insists, and not come out a better, finer person.

And if you don't believe this happy miss, you've got to walk 140 miles to disprove her. I don't think I am over-enthusiastic when I say, "Bah."

The story isn't important, but it represents a whole school of thought I wish would go away. Leave our little sacrifices alone, will you, Cuddles? We like them the way they are.

Rainfall At Rocky Passes All Records

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE. — This is supposed to be a wet district but this year passes all records, with rain almost every day since the 24th of May. The river is higher than for years, and the ferry was out for over a week, going back Saturday for daytime runs.

There have been more thunder and lightning storms than usual and a severe hail storm in the Beaver Flats district wiped out the crop on Ernest Sims' farm. Roads are very bad and some 50 farmers have had to drive in with horses as they visit their cars or trucks too often in mudholes.

Children Walk Bridge To Camp

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE—With the ferry being out, difficulty has been experienced in getting the children, who have attended the two camps at Crimson Lake, across the river. They have had to walk across the high railway bridge while their clothes and supplies are taken over on a handcar. Trucks waiting at the other side of the river have transported them to the lake. When the boys went across there was no truck waiting and they proceeded to walk the eight miles but were saved the long tramp when a truck met them and took them the rest of the way.

The camps have been under the supervision of Miss Todd, deaconess of the Presbyterian Church. The first was for girls under 12 and the second for teen-age boys.

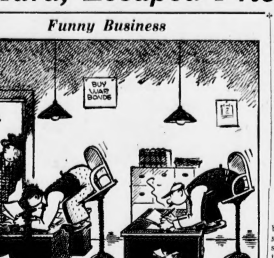
FOOD VERY SCARCE
Life In German Prison Camps Hard, Escaped Priests Reveal

Funny Business



"It cures napping in the office—if they fall asleep, they fall off!"

By WILLIAM STEWART

LONDON, July 16.—(CP)—Four French - Canadian ecclesiastics have arrived in Britain, months after their individual escapes from Nazi-guarded prison camps near Paris.

All members of "La Congregation des Pretres de Ste. Marie de Tinchebray," they are Rev. Adrian Brault of Chateauguay, Que., Rev. Georges H. Gagnon of St. Georges de Beauce, Que., Roland Masse of St. Sylvere, Que., and Ernest Bourgault of St. Brieux, Sask. Masse and Bourgault have not yet received their holy orders.

Although their escapes from the big internment camp were made separately, the two priests, and their student associates who were interned together July 7, 1940, with about 2,000 other Canadians, were reunited shortly before reaching Britain. All hope to return to their Canadian homes soon.

LIPS SEALED

Their lips were sealed about the manner in which they got away for fear of reprisals against those who helped them.

Father Brault said quietly: "The boches are barbarians. I know what they would do."

Twenty-three-year-old Bourgault was the first to make a getaway a year ago. Father Gagnon escaped last January, Father Brault in February, and Masse, a 24-year-old student, a few weeks ago.

Acting as spokesman for the group, Brault, who is 36 years old, recalled that the first few months of internment were "very hard—there was not much food. There was only one toilet and a constant queue of prisoners before it. There were 2,000 in Camp Desert."

"We lived in barracks, 16 men in a room built for eight. There were only two windows and they were closed day and night.

Gagnon, who is grey-haired at the age of 32, said "on the way out I saw a very old man faint in a food queue in one city and it was a fact that children and the aged are dying for want of food."

MORALE DROPPING

Brault said the morale of the Nazi guards "dropped remarkably" between the early days of their internment and last winter. "It seemed to start with the Russian war," he said.

"By that time discipline had become so loose the guards were smoking on duty and even selling the prisoners Hitler was going to lose the war because he had too many countries to hold."

War Risks Bill Is Branded As Dangerous Law

OTTAWA, July 16.— (CP) — The government-sponsored war risk insurance bill came under fire from both sides of the senate yesterday and was described by Senator William Duff (Lib., Nova Scotia) as "dangerous legislation." On second reading debate on the bill was administered after several members expressed opposition to the principle of the government-provided insurance. Opposition was voiced by Senators Duff, C. C. Ballantyne, Conservative leader in the red chamber, D. MacArthur (Lib., Prince Edward Island), and L. Cote (Lib., Ontario).

V

Mother, Member Of Banned Group, Loses Children

VANCOUVER, July 16.—(CP)—Restoration of two children to their father in Montreal was ordered in supreme court yesterday by Mr. Justice Manson, who commented that "because of his religion, this has declared Jehovah's Witnesses to be illegal, it is a matter of major importance that children of such weaknesses and strength. They certainly would not try to open the knockout offensive against China or the blow against Russia without similarly sound tactical and strategical operational plans. As yet there is no evidence that such preparations are under way.

ANOTHER POSSIBILITY

This fact leads to another interesting possibility, as viewed by Chungking military experts. That is of an all-out-economic-psychological offensive by the Japanese.

It would be accomplished, supposedly, by letting the Chinese simmer all summer while the Japanese appear to be engaged elsewhere, for instance, in planning the Siberian offensive. Then the Japanese would turn about suddenly and open a violent campaign to cut Chinese communications and gain control of all routes by which aid might reach them.

The campaign would be calculated to shatter morale, undermine stamina and slowly choke China into submission.

Psychologically, the experts believe, this point might find the Japanese in a strong position. There has been much propaganda in China about Anglo-American production but the Chinese have seen little concrete evidence of it.

There is no talk here now of "armies that don't fight." Then, too, there is a feeling of bitterness because the Allies have not formed a definite guiding policy to be embodied in some sort of Pacific charter are invariably described as "limited", actually are defensive. His slight gain on the central sector of the Alamein front has been offset by a German advance to the north, near the coast.

RE-FORMS TROOPS

In the opinion of Brig. Gen H. S. Sewell, British military commentator, Rommel has evidently completed the reorganization of his forces made necessary by the rapid pace of his advance since the fall of Tobruk. His air strength has been reinforced from Crete and Sicily, and despite incessant attacks by the R.A.F., supplies of ammunition and fresh fighting units must be reaching him.—

"The result is that he now appears to be in a position once more to resume the offensive," Gen. Sewell observes; "There is no doubt that the short British line of communication based on Alexandria gives Gen. Auchinleck a great immediate advantage in getting troops up to his line, but Egypt is, after all, only an advanced base which in its turn has yet to be filled up from England, the United States, and to some extent from India."

As the situation now stands, the Imperial are holding, but the balance of strength is delicate and could be upset by reinforcements to Rommel from Crete unless the Imperials can get considerable reinforcements of their own, which are not at present in sight.

Crete is 180 miles from the Italian base of Derna in Libya and troops can be ferried over by transport planes, while others, with tanks and artillery, can be sent by boat, despite the British naval and air blockade.

MENACE STILL ACUTE

Thus the menace to the Suez Canal is still acute. If Rommel starts his new drive and appears to be attaining his objective, there is a strong possibility that the Axis may parallel it with an attack on Syria from Crete. There is a limit to the number of troops which can be based on the island, but Istanbul reports there has been a steady flow in and out fo Crete for months.

A frontal attack on Syria would be by way of the Italian Dodecanese Islands and the British Island of Cyprus, where Eastern extremity is only 60 miles from Latakia in Syria. British forces in Syria have been depleted to some extent for use in the Egyptian campaign and a German attack in force would be a serious threat.

The aim, of course, would be for the Mosul oil fields. Rommel, if he got past Suez, meanwhile would try to close in through Palestine and Trans-Jordan.

Canada Next Britain For War Workers

By J. F. SANDERSON

WASHINGTON, July 16—(CP) —Canada stands next to Britain among the United Nations for having the greatest percentage of its manpower and women power engaged in war activities, it was stated here last night by Dr. Cyril James, principal of McGill University and chairman of the Canadian committee of reconstruction.

Speaking at the World Federation of Educational Associations at American University here, he said 800,000 Canadians are working in war industries and 500,000 are under arms.

The Canadian committee on reconstruction, he said, "has recognized from the beginning of its work that all the difficulties within the Dominion must be so co-ordinated in the post-war period that we are able to offer full and secure employment to every man and woman who desires it.

"That is not a new idea but I think it is a new concept transcending the definition which we have current before the war.

"It leads us to tackle problems of agriculture not in terms of export markets alone but in terms of nutrition throughout Canada."

Japanese Are At Crossroads On Asia Front

nationalists and Britain to squabble until the nation is weakened and invasion is made easier.

3—Japanese will not attempt immediately to knock China out of the war. They will continue trying to disperse major Chinese forces in Central China to consolidate their hold against a possible Allied offensive and to capture important "bomb Tokyo" air bases.

4—An offensive against Siberia is most logical as the next big Japanese move. It is a prime Japanese objective as one of the last jumping off points for a possible Allied air and land counter-offensive.

TWO BIG FACTORS

Two big factors support the Chinese belief that a Russian offensive is favored by the Japanese over an attempted Chinese cleanup. The first is that Japan may be urged by Axis partners to exert pressure on Russia's eastern door whether the Nipponese are ready or not. This may come about due to the threat of a second Allied front in western Europe or another winter stalemate on the Russian front.

The second is that China is not as great an offensive threat against Japan as Russia. A land-based Allied offensive from China would be extremely difficult because of poor communication facilities and the imperative need for enormous quantities of supplies which the Chinese now lack.

On the other hand, the Japanese must proceed with extreme caution. They are outflanked by enemies or potential enemies. They lack sufficiently trained manpower and ample reserves to move against all of them —particularly China and Russia—at the same time, and yet they are afraid to leave one sector unguarded while they concentrate their forces to eliminate another.

MAY BUILD UP RESERVES

Japan is strong enough, however, to maintain a status quo supremacy on the land in the areas that troops now occupy and if no desperate venture is tried elsewhere, Japan might remain indefinitely behind its naval screen in the Pacific.

Japan, the military observers believe, has settled down to wait and see while building up reserves at home, strengthening perimeter defences, eliminating such Chinese resistance as will not require too great an expense of manpower and equipment, and preparing for the eventual attack on Siberia.

Strengthening this indication is the Japanese record in the entire Pacific war of proceeding methodi-

Looking Them Over

By Jack Kelly

THE present Alberta amateur golf championship at Mayfair, a tourney that at first seemed destined to be nothing more exciting than another walk-away for Henry Martell, may develop into something that the folks will be talking about for a long time. Johnny Richardson's entry has brought possibilities for a Calgary-Edmonton clash that may produce a lot of high-powered shotmaking.

Johnny has just grabbed off the Calgary city open for the second successive year with a 72-hole total of 288 over the Rapid and Municipal courses. Billy Hudson was runner-up, nine strokes behind him.

While it is true that Johnny's qualifying round of 74 at Mayfair yesterday is not sensational, it is also true that Henry Martell beat it only by one stroke and that Johnny has played enough high pressure golf to be a very tough citizen in match play.

Bill Gostick, Glen Gray and Whit Matthews of Edmonton also qualified with scores that make them serious title contenders. Gostick and Gray may be a trifle short on tournament experience, but Whit Matthews has plenty of it. Whit is playing particularly well this season and he'll be very difficult to eliminate from the title chase.

Purdue Makes the Hard

JUST a little over a year ago, Purdue University started a program of physical preparedness for its male students—a P.T. course designed to harden up the boys and prepare them for armed service for their country. Several other U.S. universities followed the lead and now Purdue has released a report on just what has been accomplished in this first year of training.

The percentage of improvement in measurable events was 16.9 per cent after 2,067 students had taken three hours of gym work each week. When they started, the average number of times a student could chin himself was 4.89. At the end of the year it was 8.65. Similar improvements were recorded in all other tests.

Purdue has now added a 530-yard obstacle course to its training equipment. This takes the boys over 15 different types of obstacles—hurdles, jumps, rope swinging, wall climbing, overhead swinging along a ladder, tunnels and so on.

University officials also noted a general improvement in the health and vigor of the students. The course is now compulsory for all male students above freshmen status.

Sheriffs Seeking Catcher

RECENTLY the catcher of the Folsom Prison baseball team in California completed his term. Just before his release the prison paper made this appeal to all sheriffs: "Please be on the lookout for a husky young man in good physical condition who has had some experience as a catcher on a baseball team. He should have a good arm and keen batting eye. Sheriffs are requested to send him to Folsom Prison."

If this sort of scouting spreads, it will be dangerous to be a good ball player.

Jimmy Hogan Of Jasper Wins Maritime Golf Honors

ST. ANDREWS, N.B., July 16.—(CP)—After an uphill struggle in 54 holes of medal play and a nip and tuck duel in a seven-hole playoff, Sub-Lt. Jim Hogan wore the New Brunswick-Prince Edward Island amateur golf crown Wednesday night.

The former Canadian Junior champion from Jasper, Alta., now with the Royal Canadian Navy Volunteer Reserve at Saint John, won the title by playing off with young Billie Beer, talented junior from Charlottetown.

Hogan's six-above-par 76 for Wednesday's third round tied him with Beer at 239 each. The tie remained unbroken after an extra five holes and two more were played before Hogan could eliminate the stubborn Island youth.

The winner represented the Riverside Golf and Country club. His 76 was the lowest amateur score of the tournament and was beaten only once when Jerry Gianferante, professional from the St. Croix club, went around in 74 Tuesday. Hogan was handicapped by a high score of 86 in the first round. He did the second in 77.

Amateurs and professionals competed in the tournament but their scores were classified separately.

Mutuels Pay $126 Grand Circuit Race

NEW YORK, July 16—(AP)—Pay Up, a bay colt owned by R. H. Jonston of Charlotte, N.C., won the Matron Stake for three-year-old fillies at Roosevelt Raceway Wednesday under the guiding hand of Lee Smith.

The feature event of the Grand Circuit program at the Westbury course, worth $6,506, was raced with eliminations heats. Blue Boy won the first heat and Pay Up the second. With the first five in each heat running in the final, Paxton Hanover led almost to the finish, but Pay Up headed him in the last few yards.

The longest mutuel price of the meeting was paid when Bradley Hanover won the first dash for 24 class pacers, returning $126 for $2.

Green Turban Pays Best Price Of Meet

SPORTS BULLETINS

"Jasper Purse" Winner

While Green Turban didn't appear to be in a very amiable frame of mind after her victory in the "Jasper Purse," yesterday's feature race at the Edmonton Exhibition, nevertheless the trim brown mare owned by J. R. Edwards of Edmonton had exhibited a wonderful burst of stretch speed, coming up on the outside to take the event. Green Turban is shown above with Jockey Freddy Soloman up, just after receiving the floral decoration from Mrs. Webber, wife of Wing Commander W. G. Webber, officer commanding No. 3 Manning Depot.

Glen Gray Junior Golf Champion

Henry Martell Makes Good Start In Defence Of Title

Making his shots with the same smooth precision that has given him the provincial title five times in the past six years, Henry Martell won medal round honors with a 73 as the Alberta amateur golf championship got underway at Mayfair on Wednesday.

The classy Edmonton policeman took no chances and avoided pressing. The result wasn't sensational sub-par golf, but it was golf just a shade better than any of the other 38 competitors were able to turn in.

Johnny Richardson, the Calgary smoothie, was runner-up to Martell with a 74 which was unmistakable evidence to all that he will be a difficult citizen to defeat. Bill Gostick of Edmonton Municipal, also came in with a crisp 74, but Richardson's card was better in the matter of birdies.

Glen Gray, shooting the qualifying round of the Amateur as the first half of his 36-hole card for the Alberta junior championship, came in with a 76. In the afternoon he shot the other 18 holes of the junior event and carded a 71 that gave him the championship again by a wide margin.

One card of 90—that of Jack Mather—got into the championship flight.

Mayfair again won the club team match. Scores were: Matthews 78-82; Starky 79-82; Gray 76-71; Broadfoot 79-80.

Play in the first round of the championship flight got underway at 9:00 a.m. today.

Straight Tickets Are Worth $29.65

Although almost perfect track conditions made the footing excellent on the third day of Edmonton Exhibition's race meet, not even a single one of the favorites was able to register a win on Wednesday.

In grabbing off the feature, Green Turban, owned by J. R. Edwards of Edmonton paid $29.65, $10.30, $5.15 across the board, the highest prices recorded by the mutuels so far this week.

The public's choices were able to get into the money several times, but it just wasn't their day to stay out in front.

Darcila, with Jockey Freddy Soloman in the saddle, evidently set the style for the afternoon in the first race and Lora Somers came up with a closed spurt on the second half of the daily double to give the very acceptable return of $50.45 to the 70 holders of tickets.

Rural Parade upped the nose bet payoff to $9.65 in the third event and Cave Boy outfooted the favored Janisy in the fourth race to pay $8.90 for straight duests in the fourth.

Marion Somers caught the public fancy in the fifth, with Black Memory and Pat Craig next in line, but Green Turban, second longest shot on the board, beat them all to the wire to pay off the sizable sum of $29.65 on each ticket.

TURBAN COMES FAST

Black Memory had set the pace in the feature for almost the entire route, but with Pat Craig in second position, but Jockey Soloman brought the Turban up fast on the outside in the stretch. Marion Somers also closed with a rush and beat out Pat Craig for the place slot.

In the sixth race the favored Miss Claxton was never a contender and ran out. Lady Officer, third choice, staged a battle in the last few yards with Madam Somers and Carbine Man and beat them to the wire. The Madam and the Man required a photo finish to determine the place position, S. T. Knifong's chestnut gelding from Gooding, Ida., getting the call. Carbine Man was second choice with the bettors.

The Quinella ran true to the day's form when Streamlight, owned by Perlow and Denoon, of Calgary and third favorite reached the wire first with Perfect Prince least fancied of the seven entries with the exception of Mortgage Lifter making up the other half of the Quinella.

Perfect Prince had been sitting in third position for most of the race behind Kady Kale, the even-money favorite, and received the chance to move fast coming into the stretch, but was overtaken by the fleet-footed Streamlight.

There were 71 correct guessers for the quinella to share the pool of $81.55 and each received $81.55 for the highest figure for the three days.

LEADING JOCKEYS

As a result of his two wins yesterday, Jockey Freddy Soloman is next with a total of five firsts for the three days. Up to the last race Siverwright had collected four thirds on Wednesday alone.

The quinella victory on Wednesday made it three in a row for Siverwright and it also made him one of the money in five out of the seven races yesterday.

As a matter of fact Siverwright has ridden in all of the 21 races so far and he has finished in the money 14 times. He has five firsts, two seconds and seven thirds to his credit for the three day's work.

Soloman has six firsts, two seconds and six thirds to show for the three afternoons.

Following is the detailed description of the races yesterday:

FIRST RACE

Darcila overhauled Wendy A after three furlongs, drew out into a long lead but was tiring at the end. Noble King, unable to keep up early, closed with a rush through the stretch. Madgic Vision showed an improved effort, saved ground at the last turn and finished full of run. Pussy Boots lacked speed and had little left in the stretch. Wendy A stopped badly after gaining an early lead.

SECOND RACE

Lora Somers followed the pacemaker closely, came to the front without trouble after a half and held on to win in a mild drive. My Debut took command at once, could not cope with the winner, but finished gamely in the end to save the place. Four Mol saved ground in the early stages, improved his position in the last furlong but was not good enough in the drive. Royal Carol began slowly, rushed into contention but soon tired.

THIRD RACE

Rural Parade, showing speed from the start, disposed of Lazycoat after a half and drew away to win with something in reserve. Unrivalled had to take up when in close quarters at the first turn, worked his way up and closed determinedly. Lazycoat gained a brief lead after three furlongs but was not good enough for the winner. Sambuc was in the lead when he lost ground at the second turn.

FOURTH RACE

Cave Boy broke alertly, took command at once, was hard pressed by Janisy in the stretch but drew away in the final seventy yards. Janisy was close to the winner early, dropped back and came again entering the stretch but gave way nearing the finish. The Moon could not keep up. Emir tired.

FIFTH RACE

Green Turban, in the thick of contention from the start, responded gamely in a hard stretch drive and came to the front a short distance out. Marion Somers moved up on the inside in the last quarter, was forced to come to the outside for the drive and closed with a rush. Pat Craig took command when Black Memory tired in the stretch, but gave way when asked for his best. Story Teller could never reach contention. Black Memory made the pace hard pressed and quit badly through the stretch.

SIXTH RACE

Lady Officer, within striking distance from the start, moved up willingly after a half, quickly gained a clear lead and drew away in the stretch. Carbine Man, also fervently placed early, caught the tiring Madam Somers in the final stride, but was no threat to the winner. Madam Somers showed an improved effort in making the pace and finished gamely after being passed. Miss Glaxton lacked speed and only outfinished tiring horses.

SEVENTH RACE

Streamlight, outrun to the stretch, moved up with a rush on the outside and caught Perfect Prince in the final strides. The latter raced close to the pace, went to the front with a rush at the final turn, but failed to hold the winner in the final test. Prince Pagan lacked speed and only outran tiring horses. Weecarol tired after forcing the pace for five furlongs. Kady Kate made the running hard pressed and gave way badly.

Canadian Open Likely To Witness Scores Under 280

TORONTO, July 16—Since the Canadian Open Golf Championship was renewed in 1919 there have been fifteen aggregate scores under 280, but only five of these have been used in winning the title.

Lawson Little, of Monterey, Cal., winner of the British and American amateur titles before he turned pro holds the scoring record with a 271 made over the St. Andrew's course in Toronto in 1936 to win the first Seagram Gold Cup. This par-shattering score was made up of rounds of 67-69-69-66.

The late Douglas Edgar of Atlanta, Ga., broke 280 for the first time in the Canadian event at Hamilton in 1918. His card of 278 gave him a 16 stroke margin over Bobby Jones and Karl Keffer of Ottawa. In 1923 Leo Diegel won his fourth Canadian crown with a 274 at Kanawaki, a score duplicated by Sam Snead last year at Lambton. Bob Gray holds the distinction of turning in the lowest score by a non-successful contestant, a 276 last year at Lambton, two strokes behind the winner Sam Snead.

Other scores under 280 included a pair of 277's by Tommy Armour at Kanawaki in 1919 and again at Hamilton in 1930, the latter score winning the championship that year, Johny Farrel shot a 278 that year, Last year at Lambton Gordon Brydson shot a 278, four strokes away from the coveted Seagram Gold Cup.

Others under 280 have been Mac Smith and Sandy Marten at Hamilton in 1930 and Jimmy Thompson at St. Andrew's in 1936, all these being 279.

With the brilliant field lined up for this year's renewal it seems certain that the winner will have to shoot well under 280.

Seabiscuit's Mark Easily Exceeded

BOSTON, July 16.—(AP)—Whirlaway buried Seabiscuit's all-time money winning record deep in Suffolk Downs "graveyard of champions" Wednesday with a streak of lightning speed.

Taking over the Biscuit's throne as the world champion bread-winner of the turf, the long-tailed Kentucky cannonball turned loose his "crusher" kick in one burst of running power to come from almost out of sight and win the rich Massachusetts Handicap faster than it ever has been done before.

And with the $41,830 he won as he zipped across the finish line, the colt they used to call crazy added enough to his earnings to give him a total of $454,336 for his 2½ years of racing, thereby wiping out the $437,730 mark the Biscuit took so long to pile up a few years back.

What's more, the way Whirly did it—carrying a weighty load of weight and running against a fancy set of front-flying "speed" horses—made it look more than ever as though he can go on to become the turf's first $500,000 baby in history.

Warren Wright's Whizzer had the deck stacked against him. Yet Whirly came from 11 lengths back to hit the wire in 1:40 1-5 for the mile-and-an-eighth, lopping two-fifths of a second off the track record War Relic chalked up in this same stake a year ago.

At the finish, he had a clear edge of 2½ lengths on Rounders, the Irish-bred invader from Texas Emerson Woodward's barn — and the margin was getting bigger with every stride, to the accompaniment of roars of cheers from 33,000 customers who knocked Mr. Big Tail down to even money in the betting.

Another length farther back came Mrs. Parker Corning's speedy Attention, one-time Whirlaway jinx, and four lengths behind him was William Woodward's Apache, the tall, handsome three-year-old who was a surprise starter in the race. Apache was carrying only 107 pounds while Attention had 122 aboard.

In the first three quarters of a mile Rounders and Apache hooked up in a duel out in front. The four-year-old Whirly, making his usual leisurely exit from the starting gate, trailed them by as much as 11 lengths at one point in this early stage of the race.

Then Jockey Georgie Woolf of Cardston, Alta., the "iceman" who has become the colt's regular rider in the last month, clucked to him that it was time to go. And he went. He hit the others as the field moved into the far turn. He hit them so hard, he was past the last three like an express train passing a slow freight.

Trainer Ben Jones said Whirlaway would be limited for the $25,000 added Arlington Handicap at Chicago's Arlington Park August 1 as his next start.

Boudreau Doubts If Any Team Can Overhaul Yanks

NEW YORK, July 16—(AP)—Unlike several of his American League lodge brothers who have been breathing defiance at the Yankees lately, Lou Boudreau of Cleveland Indians is only faintly hopeful that the champs can be hauled back and forced to fight it out hand-to-hand down the stretch.

If there is any single outstanding characteristic of the young man who celebrates his 25th birthday on Friday, it is his insistence upon looking the facts of life straight in the eye. He is singularly free of illusions.

"Yeah, it might develop into a race," he said yesterday as Indians prepared to open a series with the Bombers, "but on the other hand it could easily become another of those runaways. If DiMaggio and Keller ever start hitting the way they should I'm afraid that's what will happen.

"They're getting great pitching now to go with their fielding. That Hank Borowy is a lot harder to hit than he looks from the stands. He uses his curve to get you off balance and then whihs in his fast one. It's really fast, too."

With some reluctance Lou consented to discuss his own club's chances. He obviously preferred to tell what a thrill he got out of the recent all-star game, which he christened with a home run.

"My team should continue to do pretty good," he said judiciously. "As long as Lee Fleming keeps on hitting around .325. He must be about the most valuable rookie of the year. Jeff Heath is hitting all right, too. But our pitching has been only fair—outside of Jim Bagby and Al Smith. We're still right on the Red Sox' heels, though, and not too far behind the Yankees if they should slip."

Lou, incidentally, thinks it is strictly rubbish about the Yanks having a vital psychological edge over rival clubs—that they win a lot of games merely by strutting around and acting superior.

"I know they've never affected me that way and I've never heard any of my players say anything that gave me that impression they were awe-struck by the Yankees. Nope, they've got a lot more than that."

Paddler Enlists

WINNIPEG, July 16 — (CP) — Wilf Batty, champion paddler and executive member of the Winnipeg Canoe club enlisted in the air crew of the Royal Canadian Air Force here yesterday. In 1937 he was a member of the Winnipeg team which won the grand aggregate pennant of the Canadian Canoe association, emblematic of the Dominion championship.

Trading Confined To July Future

WINNIPEG, July 16—(CP)—Wheat prices remained unchanged at the close of the Winnipeg grain exchange today. July at 80¾ and October at 90 cents.

Trading was confined to the July wheat future. Mills made a few scattered purchases and export business was at a standstill. At Chicago wheat was down two cents near the close on hedging.

Liquidation in oats caused prices to drop almost a cent. There was a thin trade in barley and rye and prices eased on scattered liquidation in sympathy with declines in oats and in southern markets.

Little activity appeared in the cash wheat market. Some No. 3 Northern changed hands but shippers were disinterested in other grades.

Country marketings yesterday totalled 700,000 bushels compared to 792,000 bushels deliver a year ago Grain inspections at Winnipeg yesterday totalled 503 cars and the same day a year ago 621.

Explosive Pens And Pencils Found On Eight Charged With Sabotage

A block of dynamite reported found among the equipment of the alleged Nazi would-be saboteurs arrested in the U. S. is examined by an expert in the F.B.I. laboratory, left. On the right are the component parts of a pen and pencil set found on the group. The set is described by F.B.I. officials who disassembled and photographed it, as a clever incendiary gadget that could do tremendous damage if left with anything inflammable. During the last war pens similar to these often were found in cargoes leaving Allied ports.

Market Letters

WINNIPEG, July 16—Weather conditions continue ideal with moderate temperatures and scattered rain fall. Country deliveries were quite substantial as the producers are marketing their wheat before the dead line of July 31. Coarse grains deliveries were also fairly substantial and the new crop months are meeting selling pressure even though prices now are close to minimum levels.

CHICAGO, July 16—Developments at Washington continue to be the centre of attraction in American grain marketings. The farm bloc suffered a defeat and the government will now be able to sell up to 125 million bushels of wheat for feed at a price which works out about 83c a bushel. Some doubt is now being expressed as to the possibility of securing loan values of the new crop of a 100 per cent of parity as anti-inflationary sentiment appears to be gaining at Washington.

The delegates were welcomed to the city by Alderman W. B. Caswell, who stated one of the most important things of which movements were capable today was preservation of British institutions.

U-Boat Captains Get Ship Tipoffs

A U.S. GULF COAST PORT, July 16.—(AP)—Evidence that German U-boat commanders have advance information on movements of merchant ships was given here yesterday by survivors of a medium-sized Norwegian vessel.

One man, Siguard Swendsen, 60, a boatswain of Norway, was killed in the explosion when the ship was struck by a torpedo May 17 in the Atlantic. Thirty-one other members of the crew escaped, naval authorities here revealed.

Survivors rowing away in three lifeboats were stopped by a submarine whose commander recited the name of the port from which the ship sailed and its destination and asked if that were not correct.

The captain gave him an affirmative answer.

The lifebots were separated and one was picked up 36 hours later while two others were picked up three days later and taken to a West Indies port. Twenty-nine were brought to this gulf port from the West Indies.

Companies Plan Renew Business Universal Life

Announcement has been made that the Great-West Life Assurance Company has completed an agreement to reinsure, in co-operation with a number of other Canadian companies, the business of The Universal Life Assurance and Annuity Company.

The Universal Life, founded in 1902 with head office in Winnipeg, Manitoba, operated in the province of Manitoba and the West Indies. Under the terms of this reinsurance agreement the Universal Life will cease to do business. The policies issued prior to 1907 have been administered under a trust fund established by the Universal Life in 1928. The Great-West Life will take over and continue the administration of this fund. Payment of the contractual benefits of policies not included in the trust fund will be guaranteed by the Great-West Life. This agreement will not go into force until formally ratified by the shareholders of the Universal Life and the various dominion and provincial authorities.

Although the Great-West Life is taking over all the administrative details, the agreement was arranged in co-operation with a number of other Canadian life insurance companies, each of whom will reinsure a portion of the risk.

U. S. ENVOY GUEST

24,108 Exhibition Patrons Enjoy Varied Attractions

Soldiers Give Citizens Real Show Of Might

Only the musicians, who headed the parade, were not mechanized as an impressive parade of motorized troops from the 31st Reconnaissance Bn., Canadian Army (Active), rolled through the down-town streets of Edmonton Thursday morning.

The parade, headed by the Currie Military Training Centre band of Calgary, moved south from the Prince of Wales Armory along 101 street to Jasper avenue, proceeding west and east along Jasper avenue and then back to the Prince of Wales Armory.

The troops and equipment were those used for the army display at the Exhibition grounds this week.

Directly behind the band came a squad of motorcycle riders, followed by a Bren gun carrier with an anti-aircraft machine-gun pointed toward the sky.

Then followed a long procession of camouflaged trucks. Two jeeps and more motorcyclists brought up the rear.

BAND IS POPULAR

Stirring martial strains of the band attracted immediate attention and the parade was watched by hundreds of citizens who lined both sides of 101 street and Jasper avenue.

The fine display put on by the army at the Exhibition grounds has been attracting great interest. Trade training demonstrations show just how mechanically-minded the modern Canadian army really is. There is also a demonstration of modern weapons.

Recruiting booths for both the Active Army and the Canadian Women's Army Corps on the fair grounds have been receiving many inquiries and numerous enlistments have been made since the fair opened.

Depot Handles Large Number Army Trainees

With the heaviest quota of trainees for army service yet to be called, No. 13A District depot at Edmonton, is handling the biggest rush of inductions since compulsory military service started.

Young men between 21 and 29 years old are being called up under the quota mobilizing 1,160 men in these age groups throughout Military District No. 13.

Under the order, 540 are reporting at Edmonton and a like number at Calgary, with the remainder called to Grande Prairie Basic Training Centre.

There are 27 reporting each day at each district depot.

Lt.-Col. Alan Elliott, officer commanding No. 13A district depot, stated that most trainees reporting at the district depot here are sent to basic training centres.

From time to time we get requests to assign a certain number of trainees to an organized unit. We may send some to the 3rd Bn. of the Edmonton Fusiliers and the 31st Reconnaissance Bn. In general, however, most of the trainees go directly to basic training centres at Camrose or Grande Prairie," Lt.-Col. Elliott said.

Air Cadet Enlists On 18th Birthday

Today is the eighteenth birthday of Alexander Adam Sollanych of 9633 106 avenue, and it will probably be the most memorable birthday of his life.

A flight sergeant in No. 12 Edmonton Squadron of the Air Cadets of Canada, Sollanych was being enlisted in the R.C.A.F. at No. 3 recruiting centre.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Sollanych, Alexander is signing up as a student pilot or observer. He has a brother already serving in the air force.

He is a member of the Eskimo Ski Club, the Edmonton Camera Club and the Edmonton Science Club.

Clayton Adams, chairman of the Board of Industrial Relations, who reports June was an active month of collections on behalf of employees.

Pay Adjustments Made By Board

Wage increases and adjustments will be received by 36 male and 29 female employees in Alberta as a result of investigations made during June by the provincial Board of Industrial Relations, according to a report received Thursday from the department of trade and industry.

Under provisions of the Alberta labor legislation, wage collections on behalf of employees totalled $4,146, bringing total collections for the first six months of the year to $9,471. Employees affected by Board inspections so far this year number 11,811.

Ruling Asked On Dismissal School Chief

The provincial department of education has been asked to give a ruling on the appeal of Carl Kosier, Mundare school principal, against his reported summary dismissal by the Mundare school board, it was learned Thursday from officials of the Alberta Teachers' Association.

D. M. Sullivan, high school inspector, has submitted a report to the department on the dismissal following an investigation.

It was pointed out that under the Alberta School Act a teacher dismissed without notice has the right to appeal to the department.

MAY BE REINSTATED

If it is found the dismissal is not justified the department can order the reinstatement of the teacher. Specific grounds for summary dismissal include gross misconduct, gross neglect of duty or refusal or neglect to obey a lawful order of the board.

Seven other Mundare school teachers received notice of dismissal from the board last month, but it was held that this action was invalid as the required notice of dismissal had not been received by the teachers.

McCauley Concert Quilts Displayed

Prior to being sent overseas for persons in bombed-out areas in Great Britain, several quilts which have been made by the McCauley Concert Group of Edmonton are displayed at the Edmonton Exhibition. The group's booth is opposite the military demonstration and south of the salvage display.

The quilts are covered with sewn names of persons who have contributed to the group's funds for the Queen's Canadian Fund for Air Raid Victims. The group holds weekly concerts in Edmonton and vicinity for the Queen's Fund.

Reserve Army To-From Camp Over Week-End

While more than 600 sunburned Edmontonians from six city Reserve Army units hit a home-stretch pace after nearly two weeks of the "works" in a military sense at Sarcee Camp, a like number of their companions were preparing to take on where the others left off at the coming week-end.

Lt.-Col. Alan Elliott, acting area commandant, stated Thursday the contingents for Second Camp of Reserve Army units have received orders to entrain here Saturday night for Calgary to begin their two weeks of intensive camp training.

The contingent leaving for the south this week-end will pass those who have completed the First Camp training period on northbound trains somewhere between Calgary and Edmonton.

The home-coming reservists are expected to arrive here some time Sunday afternoon. The times of train arrivals will be made known later.

Departures of the troops for second camp will follow closely the pattern of arrangements for those attending the first camp.

Other unit quotas will follow orders that will be announced later.

Officers in command and those on the permanent staff of the various Reserve Army units will continue at camp until the second period of training is completed.

Lt.-Col. E. Brown, M.M., E.D., Area Commandant, who is in command of the 2nd Bn., Edmonton Fusiliers, and Lt.-Col. R. Walter Hale, M.C., officer commanding 2nd Bn., Edmonton Regiment, will remain at Sarcee, Lt.-Col. Elliott stated.

16,000 Persons Visit Exhibit Of Alberta-Made Goods At Fair

Approximately 16,000 persons have visited the provincial government's "Made in Alberta" display at the Edmonton Exhibition so far this week, it was reported Thursday. The exhibit is housed in a tent 103 feet long by 70 feet wide, one of the largest tents of its kind in western Canada and accommodating approximately 300 persons.

The display was arranged and is under the direction of L. P. Duris, director of promotional activities for the Alberta Marketing Board. The exhibit includes 66 booths and covers a wide variety of Alberta's agricultural and industrial products.

A special feature of the exhibit, which is located near the midway in the south section of the grounds, is a quiz contest during which a large number of prizes are distributed to winners. Between 9,000 and 10,000 persons visited the display Wednesday, Citizens' Day at the fair.

ALBERTA-MADE GOODS

The Alberta-made display includes furniture, sheet metal work, breads, flour, breakfast foods, bread, cakes, pastries, dog foods and tonics, chickens, foxes, hogs, cattle, woodwork, photography, flowers, woollen wear, jams, jellies, marmalades, fruit syrups, aerated drinks, furs, dairy products and cosmetics.

Provincial government activities are also publicized at the exhibit, including health, fire prevention services, crop and soil work and products of the provincial school books branch. Information is also available on the provincial treasury branches, the interim program and the insurance plan.

Citizens' Day At Fair Proves Outstanding As Fine Weather Prevails

Favored by ideal weather, with 24,108 patrons passing through the turnstiles, Citizens' Day at the Edmonton Exhibition Association's summer fair proved the outstanding day so far and was only 1,285 below the attendance recorded last year.

Old Sol shone down in all his glory, and this combined with an outpouring of the populace to lend their aid to the fair warmed the heart of Percy W. Abbott, K.C., managing director of the association, and its directors.

From early afternoon until well after midnight the summer fair pitch teemed with humanity bent on enjoying itself. At times the press was so great that movement in the midway, in front of the grandstands and down in the midway, in front of the grandstands and down in the (mutuel) sheds was difficult.

WELL HANDLED

There were few dissatisfied customers as perfect were the arrangements made by the management for the handling of the large crowd.

A complete sell-out was recorded for the evening grandstand performance, there being approximately 8,500 persons on hand to witness the 'On To Victory' show. Immediately after the racing, people started lining up at the race track entrances to gain good positions in the unreserved seats.

8,000 AT RACES

More than 8,000 attended the races and with well backed horses coming down in front in several of the heats the form players got a "break". The long shot specialists also were favored with Green Turban, owned by J. R. Edwards, Edmonton, winning the Jasper Purse, feature race of the day, and pay-

Getting Around with Jack DeLong

In the rapidly developing manpower crisis, it would seem that one good bet is being overlooked. Installation of more automatic machinery in many industrial establishments, where obsolescent technical equipment is now in operation, would release countless thousands for the armed services or more vital industrial work than they are now performing.

And when we hear the farmers crying for relief, as harvest approaches, it is interesting to note a trend that has set in in the United States.

In an article, entitled, "Feast or famine after the war?" in the current issue of Science Digest, Alden Stevens makes interesting observations concerning new machinery for the farm.

Here is one statement that might be of interest to the hard-pressed Elliott M. Little, director of National Selective Service for Canada:

"New machines, developed at least partly under the impact of the need for more crops in wartime,

THE QUESTION

Will the terrible brutalities committed by the Germans be punished when victory is won?

THE ANSWERS

THOMAS PAGE, bricklayer: If half the stories of the outrages committed by the Germans are true then the brutes responsible for them should be punished to the limit. The death penalty should be imposed on these murderers. no mercy should be shown them.

GERALD FRASER, electrician: The torture camps of Germany must be avenged. It would appear to me that the tortured nationals will take matters into their own hands when the day of victory arrives, and the sadistic cruelties of gestapo agents will be avenged by the people most capable of measuring the degree of punishment.

FRED THOMSON: The peoples of the United Nations will see to it that just retribution is meted out to the German murderers. The politicians, they get tenderhearted in the peace terms, had better watch out. The people will not stand for any patch-work peace.

Works Soldiers Get Training Blitz Warfare

Despite the fact they are primarily mechanic-soldiers, men of No. 1 (Reserve) Armored Divisional Workshop from Edmonton and Ponoka, will be able to take care of themselves under actual blitz conditions as a result of an intensive basic training period.

The Workshop groups have been put through their paces in general infantry tactics by their own instructional staff and two Canadian Army (Active) officers attached to the unit from the Infantry Training Centre at Currie barracks.

The officers are Lieutenants A. C. Livingston and W. Batchelor, graduate of the school of instruction at Currie.

BACK ON SUNDAY

The Workshop group will return to Edmonton Sunday marching the seven miles to Calgary to entrain for the north on a special C.P.R. troop train, leaving Calgary in mid-morning.

Prodigal Children Should Be Punished

They Should Be Disinherited and Their Share of Mother's Wealth Should Be Put in Trust For Their Children

Dear Miss Dix: I have three sons and four daughters. One son is a drunkard. He goes on periodic sprees that last from three to ten days every month and has to be sent to a sanatorium to be sobered up. He has a wife and three lovely children.

One of my daughters married a fine man and has two children. She fell in love with an older man who is also married and has two fine children. The result was two broken homes. My other children are as fine as can be.

Dorothy Dix

I am about to make my last will and wonder if I should leave less to the children who have disgraced the whole family and brought so much trouble upon me. I also believe that anything left to the prodigals would be spent in riotous living and perhaps do more harm than good. I intend to provide for the children of the bad boy and girl, but am inclined to let it leave the parents anything. What is your advice?

W. A. S.

Answer: I think your plan of disposing of your property is an excellent one, only I would suggest that you leave to the children of your wild son and daughter the entire amount that you would have given their parents. They are entitled to that, for they certainly need some compensation for the lack of care that they should have received from their father and mother.

LEAVE MONEY IN TRUST

Only I would urge upon you to leave the children's money in trust for them so that neither the father nor the mother can get their hands upon it. They have already shown that they are only motivated by their own selfish desires to gratify themselves in doing what they want to do, and that no sense of responsibility to their children made them stick to their post and do their duty by them. So their children would have no right to expect them to be any more fair to them about money than they have been fair to them about life.

When I come to die, I will fold my hands in peace and feel that I have not lived in vain if I have made even a hundred men realize how important it is to tie up the money they are leaving their dependents in such a way that they will be protected, not only against crooks, but against their own folly and inexperience.

It is a common thing, for instance, for a man, who has children, to make a will saying: "I leave all of which I die possessed to my beloved wife, Maria." That is a grand gesture, and he feels certain that the children's mother will always take care of them. But often Maria marries in a couple of years and the second husband is a crook, or maybe just a bad business man, and he gets away with all the money and the children get nothing.

SONS, DAUGHTERS PROFIT

Or Maria, never having handled anything more than the market money, becomes the dupe of the glib talking promoters who persuade her to sell her husband's gilt-edge bonds and invest in Wild Cat Preferred. Insurance companies tell us that what between super-salesmen and borrowing friends and relatives and Maria going on a spending spree with the first money she has ever had to blow in, it takes her about ten years to throw to the winds what her husband has taken forty years to pile up. Furthermore, if there are any black sheep in the family, of course, Mother is going to pay them out of trouble, and they get all the fortune, while the good children get none. In every family it is the prodigal sons and daughters for whom the fatted calf is slain.

And when a man is going to leave his daughters some money, he should tie it up tight and fast on them so that they may not come to want in their old age. Not every husband wants to cheat his wife out of her inheritance, but every man believes that if he only had his wife's money he could make a million. And when the money is gone, it doesn't make much difference to daughter whether it went by accident or design.

A woman who loves her husband is put on a hard spot if her husband's fingers itch for her money, because he says to her "if you love me, you would trust me and you would be willing to give me your money to help me." She can't say "no" without practically breaking up the family, yet she may know that good and kind as he is and honest in his intentions, he is impractical and has no financial sagacity and is utterly incapable of either making or taking care of money.

So think over these things, Mister, when you go to make your will.

GIRL WHO LIES

DEAR MISS DIX: A little over a year and a half ago I met a girl who enchanted me and immediately I began dating her. She said she didn't like my dating other girls so I gave them up, but she continued dating other boys. I had my suspicions about her from the beginning when she let me kiss her on our first date. Now I find that she is very free with her kisses with all the boys. She denies this, but I have reason to know that she lies to me.

Now here is my difficulty: I cannot respect a liar. Lying is not up my alley. Knowing her to be a liar, shall I continue dating her? Or shall I tell her that I know she is lying and see what she says and intends to do about it? Or shall I immediately cease all of our relations and start dating other girls?

A DRIZZLE.

Answer: If you find the girl interesting and amusing and enjoy going out with her and have no intentions beyond an evening's pleasure, play along with her and become one of the kisses. But if you are really in love with her and have matrimony in view, break off the affair at once.

Don't marry a girl who is a liar. You will never have a moment's peace if you do. The Bible's definition of a good wife says that "the husband's heart doth safely trust in her," and that is the one thing that is indispensable in a successful marriage. A man must believe in his wife as he believes in God and not be continually tortured with doubts and fears.

This girl evidently cares nothing for you. She is just out for a good time.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

If you have a boy 8 to 18 years of age, the chances are great you will consider him Enigma Number 1. All of these years you have given him daily examples of the right behavior. You have given him the security of your articulate affection and your attention. And now you discover that, seemingly, he has been untouched by all of them.

ELDRED

While occasionally he may notice you as an impediment under his feet, most of the time he ignores you. His behavior is a pattern of his gang's behavior, his opinions are their opinions and their standards and ideals are his.

While you despair over his rudeness (this tin ears turned to your exceptional), his untouchiness and complete absorption in himself and his friends, you know you are lucky if he is running with other boys like himself from other families like yours. His gang's standards may appall you but they won't outrage too greatly your ideas of what are right and wrong. But if your boy is one of those whose attempts at friendliness are frustrated by the right boys, his need for group loyalty and the solidarity of the group behind him will drive him into other gangs whose standards may not be above those of the petty criminal. And he will be as loyal to one as the other.

His need is to belong, to be liked, to be accepted, to be useful in the gang. It remains for parents and teachers to recognize this need of the pre-adolescent boy and see above all things his gang is a good gang.

Today the, heroes of the pre-adolescent are not crooks, but instead of those fictional ones upon whom he could hang his boyish admiration and devotion. It isn't enough today for a boy to worship General MacArthur, Colin Kelly, O'Hara and all the rest —he wants to be doing something which will give him an heroic aspect himself.

He wants to work, to be unselfish, to feel a needful part of the war effort, he and his gang. No mother should be too busy to offer suggestions and provide a harbour in which he may work or play, to provide the materials for participation in a program so that her boy's desires may be fulfilled.

In order to ease these boys into adulthood and through a real crisis in their own development we have to see that they ally themselves with good gangs, that they have opportunities to become things and increase their opportunities for feeling themselves to be "big" boys.

It's an age when our previous yardsticks of parental behavior won't work. The child's own behavior should be a criticism of our behavior and a guide directed to an improvement of it. It's an age which demands not the same conduct which has sufficed up to now but new conduct on the part of the worried, hard-pressed parent.

Our leaflet, "Social Groups Which Foster Normal Social Growth," may be had by sending a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle M. Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Shorthand Course for Home Study

Practice for Promotion

Chances do come in business, but only those who're ready can profit by them. A way to be ready is to learn a skill, shorthand, in your spare time.

Shorthand isn't difficult. You can learn it in simple home lessons. Then when an opportunity comes you're trained, ready to step in—with an advantage over unskilled workers.

In Pitman shorthand, you write symbols based on the sounds of words, instead of on their spelling. The word "pay," you learn, is a light slanting stroke followed by a teeny dot. "Say" is a light curve and a dot.

There aren't many sounds in the language, so you soon master the symbols. And for common phrases like "in order that . . . as soon as," you have abbreviated time-saving symbols, easy to learn.

Then for regular practice each day—with someone dictating to you, slowly at first. Before you know it you'll be taking real office-speed dictation.

Our 32-page booklet gives the essentials of the famous Pitman system in easy step-by-step lessons. Includes exercises; abbreviated symbols for words and phrases; pointers on acquiring speed, accuracy. Can serve as a foundation for a business college course.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "Self-Instruction in Shorthand" to The Edmonton Bulletin, Home Service Department, 60 Front St. West, Toronto, Ont. Be sure to write plainly your Name, Address and the Name of Booklet.

McKenney On Bridge

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY

This year, attendance at the South Shore tournament held in Brooklyn, N.Y., doubled and in some events tripled the attendance of last year. With tire curtailment and gasoline rationing, bridge tournaments are economical relaxation.

Opening—♥A. 16

I had the pleasure of being a member of the winning team-of-four, in which 27 team participated. My partner was Joseph M. Rothschild and our teammates were Lester Gluckman and Fred Karpin.

The way Rothschild handled today's hand helped us win the event. Notice that West made a very clever pass of East's raise to three spades, although he must have been morally certain that four spades could be made. His idea was to wait to bid the game until North bid again, as he surely would. Then North and South might be content to double four spades, thinking it to be a game-saving overbid.

But Rothschild (South) was not caught in the trap. He forced West to five spades, and he had to be alert to set the contract. After ruffing the first lead, West at once led a low club. North ducked and Rothschild was in. Now he had to lead a diamond at once into dummy's ace-jack.

McCoy Health Service

The permanent relief of bronchial asthma must depend upon: 1—the development of a strong diaphragm so that the patient can inhale and exhale with perfect freedom of movement. 2—the avoidance of those foods which cause excessive gas in the stomach and intestines which in turn presses up against the diaphragm and restricts its movement in breathing. In avoiding gas, the chief foods to be left out are the starches, sugars, onions, and garlic and others which the patient has noted to be gas-forming such as cooked cabbage and cooked dried beans. Such foods must be completely eliminated at the start of the treatment and starch and sugars of all kinds will automatically cut down on the excessive secretion of mucus by the membrane lining the bronchial tubes which is a third important underlying cause. When the patient corrects the lack of mobility of the diaphragm, the excessive gas, and the excess mucus secretion he has overcome the chief causes of his attacks and then remains perfectly free from further attacks even though the attacks may have been present for several year before the treatment was started.

Once the main causes as I have outlined them are fully developed the mucous membrane of the bronchial tubes becomes sensitive and certain substances may prove irritating such as pollen, dust, hair and so on. However, I consider that the exaggerated reaction to the substances which are irritating only to the asthmatic or to the patient with hay fever, is only a contributing or exciting cause. Sensitiveness to such materials starts off the attack once the bronchi are completely and easily irritated. None of these substances will cause asthma unless the main causes are present and when the real causes are corrected, the patient is no longer hyper-sensitive and remains unaffected by substances previously capable of inducing an attack.

The phenomena occurring an attack of asthma consists of three changes. First the muscles in the walls of the bronchial tubes undergo a spasmodic contraction or tightening which narrows these hollow tubes to such an extent that air passes out with difficult, causing wheezing. Second, the mucous membrane which lines the tubes and their smaller branches swells which in turn produces additional narrowing of the air passages. Third, the membrane throws out an increased amount of mucus. As a result of any or all of these changes, the air no longer passes out freely or readily, some of it is trapped and breathing is obstructed. The up and down movement of the diaphragm or breathing muscle is restricted and patient fights for every breath he draws and then struggles to get the air out.

I have yet to find a method to surpass the fasting and dieting method of treatment in relieving asthma. The fast will usually take away the wheezing within the first twenty-four hours, so that the patient sleeps the night through, although in some cases, forty-eight hours may be required so that the patient will become convinced of the efficacy of the treatment. Patients who have had attacks for several years seem to recover as rapidly as those in whom the disorder is beginning. Probably the reason the old cases respond as quickly as the mild ones is because the patient is willing to follow instructions to the letter and considers two days of experimenting more than makes up for skipping a few meals. Also, these patients have failed to find any ordinary treatment that will help and they appreciate a method that gets results.

All questions regarding Health and Diet will be answered. Large, stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, 1151 West 6th St., Los Angeles, Calif.

Two cups blueberries, ¼ cup corn syrup, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon butter, grated rind ½ lemon, 3 slices enriched white bread, 1 egg white, 2 tablespoons corn syrup (additional), allspice.

Blend well and put in serving dishes. Beat egg white stiff and gradually add additional corn syrup. Pile on top of blueberry mixture and garnish with allspice. Serve warm or cold.

FROSTED LEMON SQUARES
(Serves 6)

One package prepared vanilla pudding, 3 cups milk, 1 envelope plain gelatin, 2 tablespoons cold water, grated rind 2 lemons, 1 cup coarse dry enriched bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons sugar, currant jelly.

Blend pudding with milk and cook until slightly thickened. Soften gelatin in cold water and dissolve in hot mixture. Add grated rind of 1 lemon and cool slightly. Combine remaining lemon rind with enriched bread crumbs and sugar. Beat pudding with egg beater until fluffy and fold in crumb mixture. Transfer to shallow square pan, making mixture about 1½ inches thick. Chill. When firm, spread top with jelly and cut in squares.

EVOLUTION HAS NOT CHANGED ALL ANIMALS

The popular idea of evolution seems difficult to reconcile with the fact that some animals known today are just the same as they were hundreds of thousands of years ago, and show no change. An example of this is seen in two shellfish, Lingula and Crania, which fossils show to have existed unchanged for over 500,000,000 years. These shell-fish are now living in plentiful numbers, and do not show any desire to become different. There are numerous similar examples among other species of animals.

Race Track Is Colorful Rendezvous Citizens' Day

EDMONTON'S race track went patriotic Wednesday afternoon. Citizens' Day when a record crowd of well-dressed sports men and women thronged the track to watch big or small fortunes won or lost in a split second. High above the track more than 20 Union Jacks waved in the wind. Their red, white and blue colors were repeated in the bright costumes of the several members of "Miss Canadas" for the day selling war-savings stamps.

Highlight of the afternoon for the spectators was the march past of members of His Majesty's three forces, the Army, the Navy and Air Force. Round after round of applause greeted the men of the three services as they marched past the reviewing stand, where His Honor Lt.-Gov. J. C. Bowen took the salute.

In the Lieutenant-Governor's box were His Honor and Mrs. Bowen, Mrs. Ruth Bowen, Lt.-Gen. Crerar-Crawford, R.C.N.V.R., and Mrs. Crawford, Wing Commander Hutchison, R.C.A.F., and Mrs. Hutchison and Mrs. W. A. Grissbach. Mrs. Hutchison wore a cool dark summer ensemble and Mrs. Grissbach was in navy and white.

Mrs. W. G. Webber, who decorated the winner of the feature race, wore a red and white printed frock and a small white hat with coin-dotted veil. Others in the Webber box were Police Magistrate Harold L. Hawe and Mrs. Hawe and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Howez and Wing Cmdr. W. G. Webber.

In the enclosure were Mrs. J. W. Stafford in an all black ensemble with a single strand of pearls at the throat and Miss Betty Stafford in a wine redingote frock with wine and white printed dress.

Chartreuse green wool fashioned the sports jacket worn by Mrs. Claude Finlay with a biased striped skirt and a matching green sports hat.

Merry-Go Round

Fun At The Fair

CROWDS and crowds of people jammed the entrance to the grand stand Wednesday night all anxious and pushing and pulling. But it took four young things with their cries of "Make way, stretcher coming" to part the crowd. Once safely past they were heard to exclaim "Well it worked." Sounds like the old gag of yelling "Fire."

Woman's intuition failed miserably. Wednesday afternoon for one smartly dressed woman and her daughter. They were picking horses on hunches. The husband picked the horses on merit. The result . . . the husband was winning, the two women loosing. But then it is all part of the game.

Who says you can always have what you want! Wednesday afternoon the one desire was to have some pink spun candy. The money was all ready . . . but one couldn't buy it for the man's two spinning machines were definitely on the blink. One stood and waited and one even came back a second time, but to no avail . . . and what's an exhibition for?

Which is the worse fate, to swallow a sword, or kiss a girl? That was the problem put to a nine-year-old youngster by a side show barker on the midway. It did not take any hesitation on the part of the lad . . . he said at once that he would rather swallow the sword.

That the hand of experience certainly counts was proven once and for all Wednesday evening as one watched a LAC from the R.C.A.F. flying one of the tiny planes of one of the rides with grand skill and finesse. From the trouble the other people were having keeping their planes on an even keel, there was certainly a knack to it.

Situated at the south end of the midway is the salvage booth, where interested Edmontonians can actually see what use their old rags, glass, rubber and the like are being put to. The canvas top proved to be pretty warm Wednesday afternoon for two members of the Girl Guides who were on duty at this booth. They looked longingly towards the pink lemonade and ice cream sandwiches and one had little difficulty deciding in what direction they would head when they were relieved.

Gals with broomstick skirts or, for that matter, with skirts and not slacks should beware of one of the fun houses on the midway. At the completion of the trip a gusty blow of wind tends to have disastrous results on milady's dignity. Slacks are a sure cure.

"These rides are all right for the youngster but really they are only kids' play," one thought. On a dare, however, one went on the Moon Rocket. A return trip will be made to hunt for lost parts of the anatomy.

West Pioneer Is Visitor In Edmonton

One of the first white children born east of the police post at Fort Saskatchewan, Mrs. C. A. Davenport of Cut Knife, Saskatchewan, has been visiting in Edmonton guest of her cousin, Mrs. Hollis C. Freeman. She is at present visiting her mother, Mrs. Alex Hackett at Lamont. Returning to Edmonton shortly, she will leave Sunday for her home.

She is the former Annie J. Hackett. She and her cousin, Mr. W. J. McCulloch were among the first white children born in this part of the west.

Her home is at Cut Knife, Saskatchewan, the spot where Louis Riel, instigator of the Riel Rebellion, was captured by mounted police officials.

Mr. McCulloch is a veteran of the first World War and is at present serving with the Canadian Army in England. He is the only son of the late Constable Alexander McCulloch, first R.N.W.M.P. officer stationed in Edmonton South in the pioneer days of settlement. Mr. McCulloch was a radio technician with Crescent Furniture Co., Ltd.

U.S. Faced With Heaviest Tax Bill In History

WASHINGTON, July 16—(AP)—The largest tax bill in the history of the United States—a $6,150,000,000 wartime measure carrying heavy new income and corporation levies—went before the House of Representatives today for general debate.

The procedure arranged by the rule committee calls for three days of general debate on the bill and then a vote Monday without consideration of any changes in the committee's work.

Thus, there will be automatic "Yes" or "No" vote on approving the committee's decision to impose individual taxes beginning at 19 per cent for the first $1 of taxable income and at 45 per cent on the first taxable profits of corporations.

The bill calls for a six-per-cent normal tax and a surtax beginning at 13 per cent for individual income—rates about double last year's in the lower brackets, and a 24-per-cent normal tax, a 21-per-cent surtax and an 8715-per-cent excess profits tax for corporations.

It provides for corporation taxes to be increased $2,479,400,000 from the present level of $7,647,100,000 to $10,126,500,000. The boost in individual taxes would be $2,906,300,000 from $5,044,800,000 to $7,951,100,000. In addition, new and increased excise taxes on liquor, beer, wines, tobacco, train fares, freight and express shipments and parimutuel bets would produce still another $758,200,000.

274 Jap-Owned Vehicles To Go On Auction Block

VANCOUVER, July 16.—(CP)—Two hundred and seventy-four Japanese-owned motor vehicles, held by the custodian of enemy property, will go on the auction block this week, it was announced here yesterday by the custodian of enemy property. The vehicles represent the residue of automobiles and trucks seized by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police on government order March 9, after requirements of the British Columbia security commission, fire wardens, public works projects and other government departments had been met.

Early Notice Is Needed For Service Delay

Many trainees called for military service, who have applied for a postponement of that service, have been unable to obtain such postponement because they failed to notify the War Services Board within the stipulated time, Chief Justice Hon. Horace Harvey stated Thursday in outlining the regulations governing the application for postponement of military service.

He said that in many cases hardship had resulted to the applicant for postponement, and was issuing the statement in an effort to eliminate such cases.

When a recruit receives his notice to take a medical examination to ascertain whether he is medically fit for military training, he must go before a doctor within three days for his examination as the notice informs him. It would be wise for him to ask the doctor whether he has been placed in Category "A" for no one is being called for service at present who is not placed in Category "A". If he is placed in Category "A" and desires a postponement of his training he must apply in writing to the Registrar of the War Services Board at Edmonton within eight days of the date, not the receipt, of the notice, stating the reasons for his application.

SHOULD SUPPORT IT

If he is employed by another, the employer should support the application. If there is such a delay in the notice reaching him that he cannot take the examination and make his application within the specified time, he can and must send in his application not later than the day he takes his medical examination. He need not and should not apply in person at the Registrar's office.

His failure to make his application as and within the time specified will probably result in his failure to secure a postponement, however deserving he may be of such postponement, for the Board is forbidden to grant a postponement within 14 days of the date at which he is subsequently notified to report at the military training centre. The provisions apply to every one including farmers who are entitled to postponements if they are entitled only if they apply as stated.

REASON FOR DELAY

The delay in the notice reaching the recruit is in nearly all cases due to his failure to keep the Board's regulations requiring him to notify the registrar of any change of address, the result being that the notice may travel from post office to post office before it reaches him. Failure to receive does not merely must he notify the Dominion Statistician, which most of them do by filling in a form at the post office and signing a postal card which is furnished them, but he must also notify the registrar of his divicet and his failure to do so may result in his being deprived of the right to receive a postponement and in addition will render him liable to a penalty under the regulations.

FILL IN ANSWERS

In all cases in which a farmer applies for a postponement he should not only send in his written application but he should fill in all the answers to the questionnaire sent him and have the facts certified by some one in authority who has personal knowledge of them and forward it with his written application. The observance of these regulations will avoid disappointment for they have the force of law and the board must see that they are carried out. The board is required to send a specified number of recruits to the training centre each month every 28 days and after the list is made up and the notices sent out it is too late to make changes, and it is useless to make applications then for the board is forbidden to grant them.

When a postponement has been granted and a further postponement is desired, it is essential that application be made within the time specified in the notice advising of the postponement, whether a farmer or not.

A. M. MacDonald, president of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, who was chairman of the special luncheon meeting held in honor of Hon. J. Pierrepont Moffat, United States minister to Canada, Thursday noon. (See story, Page 1.)

and already announced by Allis-Chalmers, will harvest 102 different crops but can be operated entirely by one man."

Continuing his observations concerning technology on the farm, Mr. Stevens writes:

"With such mechanical equipment and technical improvement in seed, an able-bodied man may be able to run a fair-sized farm in most parts of the country single-handed, and grow more crops than ever before.

"There is really nothing new about technological advance on the farm. The new factor that is hastening farm mechanization is the war.

"When Charley Jones, Jr., went into the army or took a job building a new powder bag loading plant, his father was left to run the farm. If the place wasn't mechanized before it had to be now, because more machinery was the only thing that made it possible for Jones, Sr., to run the place alone. So tractors, six-foot combines, pick-up hay balers never in history had bigger sales than in 1941 and only priorities kept the 1942 sales from going right through the roof."

He states that with a labor shortage, those on the farm must either mechanize or cut acreage. With prices for produce rising and the likelihood that America may have to feed all of her Allies, acreage reduction is out. So mechanization is the only answer, it is contended.

And Mr. Stevens makes these predictions, that will be greeted either with gladness or gloom, depending on the point of view of the individual:

"The day of the wheat and corn harvest hand has been passing for several years; by forcing mechanization this war will make him as rare as the Trumpeter Swan.

"The day of the hired man is gone too, and to some extent even the day of the son of the house is gone, for a farmer, even of fairly advanced years, can handle a far larger crop with his tractor and his self-binder than any one-man equipment than two men could before."

152 Japs Detained On Defence Laws During One Month

OTTAWA, July 16.—(CP)—Justice Minister St. Laurent yesterday informed the House of Commons that 152 Japanese were detained under Defence of Canada regulations in the period June 15 to July 13. Total number of persons detained was 156. There were no cases in which he had declined to follow the recommendations of an advisory committee, the minister said.

Legion Claims Barring Action Is Subversive

Exclusion of Canadian labor on war projects in the north is retarding progress on the work and is subversive in the opinion of the Edmonton branch, Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L. The branch has forwarded a telegram of protest to Ottawa, it was learned Thursday.

The telegram, which was forwarded to Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, minister of labor, and to the Dominion Command of the Canadian Legion, Ottawa, read:

"From information in our hands we most emphatically protest the action of the department in excluding Canadian citizens and eavsoldiers from being hired by the American contractors responsible for the construction of northern projects in Canada. Complete brief of our protest is in the process of compilation and will be forwarded when completed. These projects are war measures and any action to retard them we consider subversive."

H. E. Tanner, president, Edmonton branch Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L.

Text of the telegram was prepared at a protest meeting of the Edmonton branch in Memorial hall, Tuesday night.

Germans Attack Midlands Town

LONDON, July 16.—(CP)—German raiders attacking in the East Midlands this morning machine gunned men and women going to work and bombed one town, causing fires and some property damage.

Informed British sources said bad flying weather over the continent kept the R.A.F. from raiding Germany last night for the second night in succession.

Two hundred fighters yesterday and early last night, however, made ground-hugging attacks along 200 miles of the French coast, blazing with machine-gun fire at troops, freight cars, a gas works, wireless stations and anti-aircraft batteries.

In another sweep, British fighters sank a small enemy coaster off the Netherlands coast last night.

Four British planes are missing, the air ministry said, while three German fighters were destroyed.

Gifts Reduced To Save Ship Space

LONDON, July 16.—(CP)—In a letter to President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill asked today that the flow of individual gifts and supplies from the United States to Britain be diminished to save shipping space for war materials.

To this end the foreign office announced that hereafter cargo space would be allocated only to direct consignments through the American Red Cross and the British Red Cross and women's voluntary services, and through the British War Relief Society to the Personal Services Division.

The abrupt halt of what Churchill called "the brotherly flow of materials" to individuals and unauthorized groups represents another notch in the tightening of the British belt.

It will not necessarily mean hardship, however, since the principal effect will be on shipments of luxuries and non-essential supplies which formerly supplemented the food and clothing rations of many of the British people.

Survivors Landed

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(AP)—The United States navy announced yesterday that a medium-sized allied State merchant vessel had been torpedoed approximately 400 miles off the Atlantic coast and survivors landed at an east coast port.

EASIER ON THE FEET

LONDON—(CP)—No wonder you don't see the Tommy dragging his feet any more. The British army is using boots which weigh about one pound less than in 1918. To be exact, three pounds, 3 ounces, compared with five pounds.

C.C.F. Leader Flays Policy No Elections

SASKATOON, July 16.—(CP)—"Surely it is a strange doctrine which says that in order to defend democracy abroad, one must stop practising it at home," T. C. Douglas, C.C.F., M.P. for Weyburn and leader of the Saskatchewan section of the C.C.F., said in his presidential address to delegates gathered to take part in the second annual convention of the provincial organization, opening here yesterday.

Mr. Douglas scored the proponents of the "no more election idea," declaring that according to laws, the coming year should be an election year and that, in view of a Federal election having been held in 1940, and provincial elections in B.C., and Nova Scotia last fall, proposals for the postponement of elections "for the duration" seemed strange.

B. C. Collieries Need 1,000 Men To Speed Output

VANCOUVER, July 16.—(CP)—H. R. Plommer, vice-president and general manager of Canadian Collieries (Dunsmuir) Limited, said here yesterday that British Columbia's coal mining industry, facing the prospect of declining production, could "make good use of 1,000 more men during the next few months." Mr. Plommer said that shortage of manpower was the reason for the loss in output. Demand for coal continues to increase, and it is expected that during the next few months British Columbia's coal requirements will be about 25 per cent. greater than a year ago.

Parade Postponed

Parade of "A" Company, South Edmonton Bn. V.V.R. scheduled for Friday at 7:45 p.m., has been postponed until Friday, July 31, at the same time, it was announced Thursday by Capt. A. J. Huff.

Citizens' Day Great Success At Exhibition

ing off at $48.50 for $6 across the board.

The daily double—Darells to Lora Somers—paid $50.45, while the Quinella—Streamline and Perfect Prince—returned the substantial amount of $81.55 for a two dollar investment.

Not a single accident was recorded during the day despite the large crowd, and police report that for the third day there was a clean sheet as far as any serious crime was concerned.

The hot dog stands, restaurants on the grounds, candy vendors, and the concessions did a roaring business as citizens stepped out to enjoy themselves to the limit.

Loud acclaim was given to the R.C.A.F. squadron from the No 3 "M" depot, R.C.A.F., following the presentation of the precision drill. The squadron last night was moved further up the platform thus enabling those seated on the north end of the grandstand to see every movement of the drill perfectly.

GREAT APPLAUSE

Tremendous applause followed the completion of the drill, which has been ruled as one of the outstanding exhibitions at the fair.

The "Victory Ceremonial Parade" staged on the infield following the running of the fourth race was thoroughly appreciated by the 8,000 attending the afternoon races. A salvo of cheers roared from the crowd as the 100 men of the R.C.N.V.R. marched into the infield to be followed by a similar number of airmen from the No 3 "M" Depot. The party was headed by the 49th battalion (R) band.

The parade was formed up in a "V for Victory" formation for the flag raising ceremony after which Capt. E. T. Scagg, senior chaplain of the Edmonton garrison, offered prayers for victory.

An interested visitor to the fair Wednesday evening was J. Pierrepont Moffat, American ambassador to Canada, who was the guest of His Honor Lieut.-Governor J. C. Bowen at the grandstand performance

800 Axis Citizens Depart For Europe

WASHINGTON, July 16—(AP)—The Swedish liner Drottningholm, which has made two round-trip voyages between Lisbon and New York for the exchange of Americans and Axis nationals, sailed from New York yesterday for her home port of Gothenburg, Sweden, with approximately 800 Axis nationals aboard.

In announcing the ship's departure, the state department said most of these Axis nationals were sent here from Latin American republics which have declared war against or broken off relations with the Axis powers.

LOS ANGELES, July 16.—(AP)—Groucho Marx told his wife, "either you get a divorce or I will get one," she testified yesterday as she obtained a decree. They were married in Chicago Feb. 4, 1920. They separated Dec. 29, 1941.

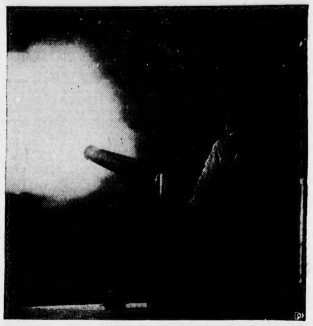
EVERY KITCHEN AIDS OUR ARSENALS

Table Scraps Put Punch Into Canada's War Drive

Sparky, a bone-saver from way back, sets an example for the housewife. Vegetable oil imports are partly cut off. To ensure sufficient quantities of fats and greases for war use, every home in Canada should save bones, drippings.

This is concentrated glue made from bones which the home owner has placed in a paper bag and set out separately for the garbage collector. Drippings are put in old cans. Glue has a multitude of uses throughout war production.

Ten pounds of processed household fats and bones produce nine pounds of soap and one pound of glycerine. This is high-grade glycerine being poured into a barrel. It will be shipped to an explosive plant to make nitro-glycerine.



Behind the roar of our coastal defence guns is the grim power of cordite, which like practically all propellents contains nitro-glycerine. Every pound of nitro-glycerine requires a half-pound of glycerine from fats and bones

Women Fill Men's Shoes

"Commando" is coming to mean any type of fighter—on our side—whose business is to strike devastating surprise blows. Such a soldier is Sgt. Jack Ross of the U.S. Army's new Tank Destroyer Command. Jack lovingly tests his bolo knife. He has a tommy gun across his knee, a .45 automatic in his belt, a Molotov cocktail in his hip pocket. Few enemy soldiers will be pleased to meet Sergeant Ross.

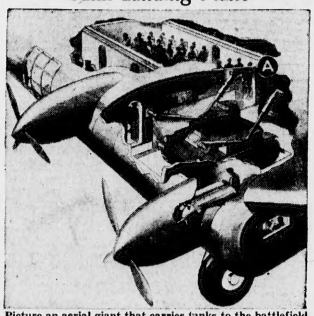
Dive Bombers

Dive-bombers like these U.S. planes are being supplied to the United Nations in increasing numbers. The machine in the foreground has peeled off from the formation for an attack on the enemy.

Tank Landing Plane



Picture an aerial giant that carries tanks to the battlefield, drops them as it would its landing wheels, and in addition totes scores of fully-equipped paratroops. That's the aviation miracle just designed by noted plane manufacturer Vincent Burnelli. How it would work is shown in these sketches, prepared by Mechanix Illustrated. The phantom view at top shows the interior of the plane, with paratroops seated inside the huge wing, at upper left. In the foreground one of two light tanks is in place. Arrows at (A) indicate retractible landing gear, attached to the tank. As the four-motored giant approaches the battlefield, the tanks are lowered, much as are landing wheels on ordinary planes. The tanks' treads are geared up to landing speed. The plane flies low, sets the tanks on the ground and zooms up and away to its base. The lower sketch shows how, with guns blazing, the tanks go immediately into action.

The dramatic photo was snapped by a news cameraman who fou nd a routine type of assignment suddenly packed with action. Ill-fated ship apparently hit a mine. (Passed by U.S. Navy censor).

Murder In Ferry Command

By A. W. O'Brien

CHAPTER VIII

LIKE a person waking under a strange roof and attempting to figure where he is, Dawson fought through a haze of pain to clear his mind. The first motion of his body brought savage darts while his head pounded mercilessly. His mouth was dry as parchment and his tongue evidently swollen. As he twisted a bit to the right the pain increased around his heart . . . then he remembered John's closing words and the flash of pain.

His wrists and ankles were numb, for which he was grateful. They were badly swollen, but he'd be able to work on them without too much suffering.

The gray light of pre-dawn trickled through a skylight into his storeroom prison. Peering at the forms about him he concluded a number of them were packing cases. That meant rough, jagged edges.

Picking out a large one propped in a corner, he began the ordeal of wriggling toward it. Eventually he made it, panting for breath, salty perspiration dripping over his eyes.

Slowly he manoeuvred for position, lifting his bound legs and propping them against the high rough edge. Mu'ttering a silent prayer that the packing case wouldn't move with the weight of his legs, he drew them up and down so that the rope binding his ankles scraped on the edge. Until he got the use of his legs he couldn't stand up to free his hands the same way.

It was a long, tedious job—hours it seemed—while the gray light changed to bright sunlight. Frequently he felt his head swimming, but Dawson continued scraping. It had to be done easily lest the sound awaken his captors. . . . Abruptly he froze. What was that?

A door had shut almost directly below him and . . . yes, somebody was mounting the stairs!

Frantically, Dawson poured every ounce of power into the scraping . . . the rope was stretching . . . break, damn you, break . . . there was a key grinding in the lock . . . one more last push—that did it . . . the rope parted!

Digging his teeth into his lips to suppress his sobbing breath, Dawson swung his legs over to one side and stretched his cut stiff ass the door swung open.

The dusty rays from the skylight reflected on a revolver in a man's hand—it wasn't John; it must be the other man who had helped carry him the night before.

Suspiciously, the man looked from the spot where they had thrown the captive to the shadowy corner. Slowly he approached, gun aimed squarely at Dawson.

"Water, for God's sake, water!"

The man's sneering face was directly over him now.

"How would you like an ice cold Tom Collins, big shot?" he rasped.

Dawson barely opened his eyes as he spoke again.

"Look at my ankles—something has happened!"

It was a desperate gamble, but Dawson put everything on the fact that he was in a dark corner and the man would have to bend over to see . . . It was working—he was bending over curiously . . . now was the moment!

With every last bit of strength drawn from the reserve of a well-conditioned physique, Dawson steadied himself with his left foot and kicked upwards with his right. It landed with a sickening crunch and the man crumbled across Dawson's legs!

It wouldn't do for this chap to waken up too soon. Brutally, Dawson kicked three times full into the face of the unconscious man—that ought to do the trick.

Gradually, Dawson scrambled to his feet—he had never realized before how difficult it was to rise from the floor with one's hands tied.

His head swam dizzily and his knees trembled. The nervous tension plus the long period during which the ankles were tied left him in bad shape. He'd have to work with the utmost caution.

Backing into the door so that he grasped the doorknob with his tied hands, he closed it softly. Then he moved quickly across the storeroom and turned his back to the packing case edge, using the scraping method on the wrist rope.

It took even longer than the other, but the tough strands finally parted. For fully five minutes he rubbed the angry, swollen wrists before turning to the man on the floor. From a packing case he stripped a length of wire and deftly bound him.

Picking up the revolver, he opened the door gingerly and stepped into the hall. Still no sounds except from the kitchen.

Identifying the hall through which he had been carried as that of the second floor, he walked on tiptoe, pausing at the door beside the main staircase leading to the ground floor. It had been a man's room.

Pressing his ear against the door he heard deep, regular breathing. Ever so carefully, he turned the handle. It opened noiselessly and Dawson whisked inside.

John was in bed—sleeping peacefully. Dawson was beside him in a flash, switching the revolver around so that he grasped it by the barrel.

He shook the sleeping man tenderly.

"Wake up, cutie, and see who's here!" he said in a loud whisper.

The regular breathing ceased and John's eyes fluttered open. For a second he stared up unseeingly, then sat bolt upright, his mouth opening in the prelude to a yell.

That's just what Dawson was waiting for. His arm swung in a short arc and the butt of the revolver caught John squarely in the mouth.

"Now get up, skunk, and watch yourself!" he growled.

Clutching his mouth, John slowly moved out of the bed and stood up.

Obediently, John half staggered to the door. Dawson swung it wide and his prisoner walked into the hallway, halting at the top of the steps. Something in his manner caught Dawson's attention. Flashing a glance down the steps, he saw the door housekeeper halfway up —a snub-nosed automatic in her hand!

Dawson didn't falter—he fired without warning and the housekeeper clutched her shoulder, tottering sideways and rolling down the steps.

Dawson bounced past John to the open door—the door leading into the girl's room. He pushed it open and went in—revolver first. One quick glance told him it was unoccupied—the bed had not been slept in. John was still standing rock-like in terror at the head of the stairs.

"Okay, chum," Dawson grinned. "Let's go downstairs."

As they passed the prostrate form of the housekeeper, the investigator examined her briefly.

"Sorry, grandma," he said, "but you should be a nice girl." Digging his gun into John's back, he continued, "and you keep right at the end of this gun while I phone—just in case there should be somebody else in this den of rats."

Using only one hand, Dawson flipped the phone off the hook and dialed "Operator." Lifting the receiver he barked:

"Federal Bureau of Investigation —emergency. . . .

A l m o s t immediately, he was through to the officer in charge.

"This is Clyde Dawson of the Canadian Intelligence Department . . ." John half turned and Dawson dug the gun into his backbone. "I've bagged a nest of Nazis you'll want to meet—please make it fast." He gave the address and the phone clicked.

Just as Dawson hung up, the doorbell sounded. Wheeling quickly, he pointed to the floor:

"Lie down, toothless—flat on your back and one move to get up will be your last!"

Dawson stepped backwards to the door and peered through the glass. It was the postman. Shifting his revolver to the other hand, he opened the door.

"Special delivery letter for Mr. John Dexel."

"I'll sign for it," Dawson replied. Closing the door again, he looked at the letter, his curiosity instantly aroused. The postmark was North Sydney, Nova Scotia.

Dawson didn't hesitate. He tore the letter open.

Hold Everything

"Good morning to you, good morning to you, good morning, dear soldiers . . ."

Laff-A-Day

"I just couldn't resist the temptation to wear my new hat!"

Curious World —By William Ferguson

Answer: Harrow, rake, saw, mowing machine.

What To Do

The clothes you wear can tell the world what kind of a personality you have, whether you are neat, careless or a show-off.

But they can do much more than this. What you wear will also give you poise and assurance and a graceful carriage—or you can of this and make you ill at ease and awkward.

When you dress do everything you can to look attractive as possible and put on your prettiest frock—then forget your clothes. When you know you look your best you have a certain poise and self assurance that everyone should have, but which is not obtainable unless you are well groomed. Worrying about a hanging slip, or crooked stocking seams can deprive anyone of the casual, attractive and important assurance they need when contacting other people,

Judging Ends In Livestock At Exhibition

Judging in the livestock classes at the Edmonton Exhibition Association's summer fair was completed Wednesday with honors held even between visiting and Alberta exhibitors.

In the Shorthorn cattle classes F. H. Deacon's exhibits swept the boards, the Unionville, Ontario, exhibitor taking the Senior and Junior male championships with Glenburn, Galahad and Scotsdale Beaufort, the former being named grand champion male of the show.

This exhibitor also won the grand championship femade award with Rothes Queen 7th.

In the Holstein-Friesian classes G. M. Gibb, Edmonton, won the male grand championship with Sprucehaven Farm Hermit, while the grand championship in females went to Hays and Co., Ltd., Calgary, with Nellie Alcartra Gerben.

Champion stallion in the Percheron horse class was exhibited by Hardy E. Salter, Calgary, and the female champion by the C.P.R. Department of Natural Resources, Calgary.

SHARE HONORS

In the grade horse classes exhibits from Lawrence M. Rye's barns, Edmonton, shared honors with those exhibited by Young and Cruickshank, Maidsone, Sask., and Charles C. Gordon, Carstairs.

P. J. Rock and Sons, Drumheller, and the C.P.R. Department of Natural Resources were heavy winners in the sheep classes. The Airdrie exhibitor, Chester W. Fowler, took the major share of the prizes in the Southdown sheep classes.

Natators Captivate Crowds

A bevy of aquatic beauties surround Alf. Phillips, the producer of "Water Cade," the unique water show on Frolic Land all this week at the Edmonton Exhibition. The group are holders of many North American swimming and diving titles and demonstrate their ability in their portable 25,000 gallon tank.

Defence Ministry For Beaverbrook Thought Unlikely

LONDON, July 16.—(CP)—Amid recurring reports that Lord Beaverbrook might be offered the post of defence minister, a story first published last Sunday by the News of the World, the Press Association's lobby correspondent wrote yesterday that such a possibility is unlikely.

The correspondent said there was no reason to believe that Prime Minister Churchill has "changed his mind" and "decided to relinquish the post or even that Lord Beaverbrook would be disposed to accept it if it were offered."

Poultry Group Asks Approval Of Legislature

Recognition of the poultry industry and its requirements was urged in a resolution passed at the semi-annual meeting of the Alberta Poultry Federation in the Calgary Exhibition offices last week.

On the motion of Mr. Hughes of Provost the following resolution was passed unanimously: "That the provincial government be asked at the next session of legislature to bring in a Poultry Act, recognizing the poultry industry as such and to cover the various requirements of the poultry industry in that act."

On the motion of Mr. Heffernan the following resolution was passed unanimously: "That we ask the provincial government, if possible, to appoint with as little delay as possible a poultry pathologist to work under Dr. Jones at the provincial veterinary laboratory at Edmonton."

A resolution was passed asking the Dominion government to include poultry meats in the ration of all enlisted personnel in Canada as is done with the United States forces.

GRANT APPROVED

Grant of $50.00 was again allocated to the Alberta Turkey Breeders' Association for the purpose of assisting them in participating in the All-American Turkey Show at Grand Forks, North Dakota.

Following the disposal of all business a comprehensive report of the meeting of the Producers' Consultive Committee to the Special Products Board held at Ottawa on June 3, 4, and 5, was presented by Ted Hughes of Provost, the Alberta delegate to this meeting.

The following delegates were in attendance: J. Standish, Midnapore, Alberta Hatching-Egg Producers' Association; V. R. Hallman, Brooks, Alberta Turkey Breeders' Association; Ted Hughes, Provost Poultry Club; G. F. Henbest, Edmonton Poultry and Pet Stock Association; E. Hay, Edmonton, Commercial Egg and Poultry Producers' Co-op. Association, Ltd.; F. J. Heffernan, Edmonton, Northern Alberta Produce Association; D. R. Clandinin, University of Alberta; C. W. Traves, Poultry Commissioner; C. E. Sample, acting senior poultry products inspector, Dominion government.

After the president's report was given by Mrs. W. Huyck of Strome, the secretary - treasurer's report was given by Mrs. J. Roberts of Edmonton, showing the federation to be in a good sound financial position.

At the request of the president, Mrs. W. Huyck, attending delegates stood in silence for one minute out of respect to the memory of the late R. H. Ennismore.

Mr. Clandinin of the University of Alberta reported that favorable consideration had been given to a previous request of the Alberta Poultry Federation for the improvement of facilities at the University for teaching and research work in poultry diseases, nutrition and other poultry problems.

There was considerable discussion concerning awarding of cups as trophies at poultry exhibitions and it was the consensus of opinion that while the awarding of cups creates a certain amount of interest amongst exhibitors, the labor and expense entailed in the engraving and distributing of these was unwarranted under present conditions and the final decision as to disposal of cups now awarded was postponed to the annual meeting.
